Explorer Presumed Dead
As Rescue Efforts Go On

DOLGEVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — James Mitchell, 23, a chemist, was presumed dead as state police turned to earth-moving machines today to free him from a labyrinth-like cave that has held him captive since Saturday.

Cave-exploring experts Sunday night abandoned attempts to remove Mitchell, of Winthrop, Mass., by efforts from inside Schroeder's cave, near here and about 25 miles east of Utica.

A rescue worker commented: "The dirty part of this is he didn't get hurt — just cold. Inside it is miserable cold. You tear your clothes and you have to force your way through."

Mitchell had been wedged in a narrow shaft, near the top of an underground crater into which he had descended as two fellow members of the Boston Grotto Club watched. A numbing, cold underground waterfall that had helped to prevent his ascent drenched his body with freezing water and hampered rescue efforts.

William Karras, part of a rescue team flown here from Washington, D.C., made three crawls Sunday to the crater opening — about 300 feet from the cave entrance.

He said he used a stethoscope and could not detect any sign of life in Mitchell. Karras lowered him to the bottom of the 75-foot crater to facilitate earth-moving operations.

State police requested owners of bulldozers and other heavy equipment to help rip away part of the hillside over the crater.

Rescue efforts inside had bogged down in mud and were cramped by the 12- to 16-inch-

Court Fight Talk Mounts
In USW Battle Of Ballots

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers have voted for a union president and because of the closeness of the balloting and the uncertainty of the outcome, two words stand out — court fight.

Each candidate, although expressing confidence in victory, indicated over the weekend the fight for the leadership of the 980,000-member union could move from the ballot box to the courtroom.

In Hammond, Ind., Saturday, U.S. Dist. Judge George N. Beamer had U.S. marshals impound about 8,000 votes cast by the USW's 14,000-member Gary Local 1014.

Beamer acted on a motion by Max Cohen, an attorney for the incumbent President David J. McDonald, who charged there was evidence of vote fraud in the local, one of the largest in the nation.

In Pittsburgh, McDonald's opponent, I. W. Abel, said in a statement:

"We are in the process of collecting information of voting irregularities in a number of places and we believe that as a result of the protests which will be filed, the incumbent president will lose many thousands of additional votes."

The latest Associated Press unofficial tabulation of incomplete returns has Abel, the USW's secretary — treasurer, leading by about 7,000 votes in his bid to end McDonald's 12-year leadership of the union.

The official counting will be done by the international union's tellers after they receive the votes from the recording secretaries of the approximately 3,300 locals. The vote-return sheets must be in the hands of the tellers by next Friday midnight.

The union's constitution says all votes from a local must be tossed out if a single voting violation is discovered in the locals.

The USW's executive board judges voting complaints. If a member is not satisfied with the board's decision he can appeal to the U.S. secretary of labor under the Landrum-Griffin Act.

The secretary of labor then could file suit on behalf of the complaining member. He also has power to order a new election.

While the election outcome remains at issue, negotiations with the basic steel industry are at a standstill. The talks were suspended Jan. 8.

The contract formally was reopened Jan. 1 and the union can strike May 1. The union rejected a request to extend the deadline.

Star Dies At 45

Singer Nat Cole Claimed
By Cancer In California

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Nat (King Cole, whose smoky voice made him one of popular music's brightest stars, died today. He was 45.

Death came to the famed Negro musician at St. John's hospital.

Cole had a cancerous lung tumor removed Jan. 25.

He had been admitted last Dec. 9 to St. John's for what was then termed a respiratory ailment. Later his physicians, Dr. Robert Kositchek and Dr. Elmer Rigby, disclosed that the singer had a lung tumor.

He was allowed to go home shortly after Christmas and his doctors said his professional engagements for several months were cancelled "to allow time for his full recuperation."

The first hint on Cole's illness came when he cut short an engagement at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, complaining of a respiratory ailment. The gravity of his illness became more apparent when he was unable to star in the first popular music concert at Los Angeles' new

3-Way Crash
Hurts Woman
And 3 Others

A Chester woman remains in "poor" condition today at City Hospital with injuries suffered in a three-car crash Saturday night on Route 30 near Chester in which three others were hurt.

Mrs. Pauline G. Figley, 38, of 908 Neptune Ave. was the driver of a car which hit two others after skidding on an icy curve near the Terrace Lanes bowling alley. The mishap was timed at 6:45 p. m. Saturday by the Hancock County sheriff's office.

Deputies said Mrs. Figley was headed toward Chester when her 1964 sedan skidded on ice and struck an oncoming 1965 sedan driven by Wayne Cowey, 27, of 183 Pennsylvania Ave., Chester.

The woman's car careened off the Cowey car and collided head-on with the third car driven by Hubert M. Myers, 55, of 515 Louisiana Ave., Chester.

Mrs. Figley, an insurance agent, was pinned in her smashed auto for over 45 minutes and officers and wrecker crew workers had to pry open a hole

U.S. Finds
No Evidence
Of Big Blow

Military Response
By Two Red Powers
Still Being Checked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week after striking against North Viet Nam, the U.S. government appears to have found no hard evidence of a major military response by Hanoi's giant Communist allies, Red China and the Soviet Union.

In reporting no overt signs of Chinese intent to intervene in a big way in Viet Nam, U.S. officials declined today to rule out the possibility that this could happen later. They suggested it could take the Reds some time to decide on what reaction, if any, to take beyond striking back with words, as they have done.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who has been vacationing in Florida since Feb. 3, was scheduled to return to Washington today. Rusk said he planned to proceed first to his office, and then to see President Johnson.

The big-power military and diplomatic position on Viet Nam shaped up this way:

The Chinese are reported to have some MIG jet fighters in North Viet Nam already. They did not enter the fray when U.S. and South Vietnamese craft swooped on North Vietnamese targets three days last week.

Peking could send in foot soldiers, but North Viet Nam has yet to engage its own large army estimated at 400,000. U.S. sources discounted reports of Chinese troop movements published in London over the weekend.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, returning to the Soviet Union Sunday from a 10-day visit to North Viet Nam and North Korea, with brief stopovers at Peking, has promised more aid to Hanoi.

Even before the U.S. strikes, American officials were predicting Kosygin might supply Hanoi with air defense weapons such as jet fighters. The question remains, how much will Moscow send in?

The Communist capitals chorused angrily at the "imperialist aggression" in Viet Nam, but remained vague.

Peking recalled how Chinese "volunteers" had surged into the Korean war without specifying what China would do now. Hanoi called for revenge in shrill tones. Moscow was milder.

Bombs Wreck Home
Of Black Nationalist

NEW YORK (AP) — Malcolm X, controversial black nationalist leader, whose home was damaged by three gasoline bombs, says, "It doesn't frighten me; it doesn't quiet me down in any way or shut me up."

Malcolm X, who had advocated a doctrine of Negro "self defense against white supremacists," fled with his wife and four children early Sunday after the homemade bombs crashed through the living-room window.

Damage was termed extensive, but the blaze was quickly extinguished. Police began an investigation.

Authorities believe the devices — bottles filled with gasoline with rags for wicks — were hurled from a passing car into the two-story home in Elmhurst, Queens.

Malcolm X left by plane for Detroit a few hours after the blaze to address an Afro-American rally. He said he would return today.

Business Machines

Garage Entered

Loss of $575 in office machinery and pools in two burglaries was reported to police over the weekend.

Two office machines valued at a total of $375 were taken in an entry discovered Sunday morning at Volino Brothers Block Works, 852 State St., and tools worth $200 were taken in an entry reported early Saturday afternoon in a combination garage-workshop of Frank E. Kraft, 1851 Ohio Ave., officers said.

Police said the entry at the office of the block works was timed between 6 p. m. Saturday and 7:52 a. m. Sunday. The business is owned by Ralph and Dominic Volino, police said.

The loss included a check writing machine worth $200, a combination invoice register and cash drawer valued at $175 and a checkbook in which there was one signed check, police said.

Entry was gained by breaking a 10-x-24-inch pane of glass in a door on the south side of the building and then sliding through

Fireman Injured
In Rochester Fire

Loss was estimated at $20,000 after fire swept through the interior of the Penn Grill in Rochester Saturday night, also damaging the adjoining Allen Shoe Store.

The fire was discovered in the basement of the tavern by James Rippe, a bartender. By the time Rochester firemen arrived, the entire interior of the structure was in flames.

The loss was set at "several thousand dollars" at the shoe store. An Isaly Dairy Co. store on the other side of the grill escaped damage. Fireman Jack Heuring, son of Fire Chief Francis Heuring, was treated at Rochester General Hospital for cuts of the hand suffered on a plate glass window.

City Crash Hurts
Klondyke Driver

A 58-year-old Klondyke man was injured Saturday night when his car plunged through a guard rail and dived down an embankment after a two-way collision on the Pennsylvania Ave. "Hill Rd.," police reported.

Willis Vaughn, 2131 Pennsylvania Ave. Ext., was in "fair" condition today at City Hospital with a laceration of the forehead and head and neck injuries suffered in the collision at 8:46 p. m.

Officers said Vaughn's 1960 four-door sedan was involved in a collision with an auto driven by Charles F. Harris, 16, of 1047 St. Clair Ave.

VAUGHN TOLD Patrolman Samuel E. Hayes he was traveling west when Harris attempted to pass him. But Harris saw an oncoming car and pulled to the right, striking the Vaughn auto, the injured man said.

Vaughn said his car then went out of control, crossed the highway, tore out three guard rail posts and finally came to a stop over the embankment.

Vaughn's report was corroborated by four witnesses, police said. They were listed as John Stephens of Allison St., William Williams of Shadyside Ave., Paul Headley of Gardendale Ave. and Thomas Willey of Thompson Pl.

Vaughn was taken to the hospital in a cruiser by Officer Hayes.

THERE WAS extensive damage to the Vaughn car. The right front of the Harris vehicle was damaged.

Fireman, Spectator Hurt
In Fire At Lawrenceville

An overheated coal stove today was blamed for a blaze which leveled a Lawrenceville area home Sunday, when a fireman and an onlooker were injured by a falling chimney.

Lack of water prevented Lawrenceville firemen from saving the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bennett of Little Blue Rd. after the blaze was discovered yesterday morning while the family was absent.

Assistant Fire Chief George McDole said the fire apparently stemmed from an overheated coal stove on the main floor of the two-story, five-room frame house about three miles east of Chester.

Frank Sayre, 41, of Lawrenceville, a volunteer fireman, was treated at City Hospital for bruises and abrasions of the legs after part of the chimney of the home fell on him.

Lester Irwin of Chester, who had followed firemen to the site near the Pennsylvania state line, also was hit on the legs by falling bricks, firemen said.

The loss was estimated at about $5,000 to the home and contents. Firemen were unable to save anything inside the building, which is owned by Earl Cheuvront.

Bennett was at work at the Taylor, Smith & Taylor Co. and his wife and children apparently were visiting relatives at the time.

Firemen took a tanker truck over a wood bridge over the creek to reach the home and the truck damaged the flooring of the bridge.

The second truck of the department was requested, but it was discovered the water in the truck had frozen and broke a line, making the unit useless.

There was insufficient water in the creek bed to utilize against the blaze, McDole said.

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Covered by strong and mobile anti-aircraft artillery, Communist forces captured a strategic Laotian army stronghold Sunday. The place had been holding out for years in Pathet Lao territory in northern Laos.

In Home Fire
Near Canton

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — A 35-year-old mother died early today with her three children whom she tried desperately to save from a fire that swept their two-story frame house in rural Canton.

The mother, Mrs. Lela Blair, was trapped by flames and smoke after she dropped two other children to her husband, who was standing beneath the second-story window. He had jumped to safety with a sixth child.

Also killed in the fire were Roger Blair, 8, and his two sisters, 5 and 2.

"She smelled smoke and woke me up about 4," Blair said later at Timken-Mercy Hospital.

"We were all asleep on the second floor and she said, 'Try to get out the children—and hurry.'"

"I got out one myself and she helped rescue two others. Then she went back and never came back again."

Blair, an auctioneer, and his daughters, Linda, 7, and Barbara, 11, were treated and released. Another daughter, Dina, 4, was admitted for observation. Killed were Nancy, 5, and Starlene, 2.

The fire broke out in a home that is four miles northeast of Canton on Columbus Road N. E. Volunteers from three companies battled the flames. Cause of the fire was unknown.

U.S. Feels Air Raids Are Answer

Fixed Installations Seen 'Sitting Ducks' For Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The United States has tacitly recognized that it cannot currently beat the Viet Cong on the ground without committing hundreds of thousands of troops. As a result it has in effect taken to the air to try to beat the Communist forces in Viet Nam with another type of war.

This agonizing policy decision was many months in coming. It exploded into reality a week ago when Viet Cong raiders successfully attacked two major American installations at Pleiku on the same day. Retaliatory air raids against North Viet Nam began.

THERE SEEMS little hope of ever protecting American installations here against the guerrillas, no matter what is done on the ground. Big, fixed installations always have been sitting ducks for guerrilla attacks. The Viet Cong has demonstrated this repeatedly in four years, and now appears to have opened a full-fledged campaign against bases.

The Vietnamese and American retaliatory air raids last week on North Viet Nam are not expected to have a direct effect on the guerrillas. U.S. officials do not believe the raids will seriously hamper Viet Cong infiltration routes.

"What we're trying to do," a ranking American official said, "is to get Hanoi to call off the Communist operations in the South."

These air raids are based on two assumptions.

THE FIRST assumption is that they will hurt or scare Hanoi and its Communist allies enough that they will send cease-fire orders to the Viet Cong in the South.

The second is that if such orders should be transmitted by Hanoi they would be followed by the Viet Cong.

Neither of these assumptions is a certainty, and air raids are a gamble. But it is a gamble worth taking right now, U.S. officials feel, if all is not to be lost. Air raids so far have been confined to military installations.

The war could even be escalated to a confrontation with Communist China, as things now stand. Obviously, both Saigon and Washington would prefer to take care of the guerrilla situation in South Viet Nam itself. But even in terms of expecting reasonable protection for American bases, this has been recognized as unrealistic.

L.T. GEN. JOHN L. Throckmorton, deputy commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, is one of those who have personally suffered in this war. His son, Capt. Thomas B. Throckmorton, was seriously wounded by a shell fragment in a clash with guerrillas.

Gen. Throckmorton, seemingly expressing the feeling of the entire American official community, said about the Pleiku attack:

"In the first place, it would be very difficult for the Vietnamese armed forces to guarantee security under the conditions which exist here today.

"It must be recognized that in order for them to be able to say positively that none of our installations will be attacked by mortar or rifle fire, they would have to deploy an exceptionally large number of troops around key installations to absolutely preclude infiltration.

"We must take certain calculated risks. Otherwise, we get troops tied down to static security tasks and unable to move out against the Viet Cong. They must operate away from the installations."

THE DEFENSES of all American installations in Viet Nam depend basically on Vietnamese forces operating in depth outside their perimeters. These defenses have been breached virtually every time the Viet Cong has made a determined effort.

What about bringing in American security forces? A few companies of American Military Police were brought in last summer and after the Viet Cong mortar attack on Bien Hao air base Nov. 1. But the use of large American combat units to defend U.S. installations in depth is not currently in the cards, according to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of American forces here.

If U.S. combat units, including entire combat divisions, go into operation, Viet Nam becomes an American war, and this is a situation Washington has so far sought to avoid. There are no indications here that this policy is about to be changed.

THE AIR raids have been carefully planned to include at least token participation by Vietnamese planes, even though the bulk of the job has been handled by U.S. Navy jets. Those jets are based on aircraft carriers — the only air installations that cannot be attacked by guerrillas.

The Naval equivalent of guerrilla attacks — strikes by hit-and-run torpedo boats — was tried by Hanoi during the Gulf of Tonkin crisis last summer, and failed. Communist tactician Mao Tz-tung has said the guerrilla must work among the people as fish do in water.

There are no people in the ocean but there are people around U.S. installations in Viet Nam, and this is their biggest weakness.

Ohio Now Ranks 4th In Exporting Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Export of manufactured goods from Ohio was up 17 per cent in 1963 over 1960, 3 per cent over the national increase for the period, a U.S. Department of Commerce survey shows.

The survey shows Ohio placed fourth among all states in both years, exporting $1.42 billion worth of goods in 1963.

California displaced New York as the top exporter with total shipments of $1.53 billion compared with $1.45 billion for New York. Illinois was third with $1.44 billion exported and Pennsylvania followed Ohio with $1.22 billion. Michigan was sixth with $1.1 billion.

Machinery (excluding electrical) was the largest category shipped from Ohio, followed closely by transportation equipment.

You Burn Me Up, Merchant Cries In Firing Truck

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Food-vending trucks have been parking beside C. G. Adams' confectionery and enticing away his customers.

Police said Adams, 78, related in a written statement, he poured gasoline on a food truck and set it afire Saturday. He was arrested for investigation of arson.

Many of Adams' customers are students at Manual High School, which has adult classes on Saturdays.

"The days the trucks are not there I do a pretty good business," Adams told police. "The days they are there I do no business whatever."

He said the driver of one vending truck had agreed Feb. 6 not to return.

John A. Hughes, 33, from a different catering firm, parked there Saturday and opened his truck for business.

Adams came out of his shop and said, "I told you not to park there."

"Leave me alone, old man," Hughes said he replied, "I have permission to park here."

Then Adams poured gasoline on the truck and repeated, "I told you not to park here."

"Old man, you're fooling," Hughes retorted.

But Adams ignited the gasoline, and the astonished Hughes dashed off to call the fire department.

Safety Chief Feels

Car Inspection Bite

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia's new auto inspection law went into effect Jan. 1 and one of the first to feel its bite was the man charged with enforcing it as a highway safety measure.

Lowell Conner, director of the Department of Public Safety, told a legislative committee that the 1965 car assigned him failed to pass inspection. He had to have defects remedied at a garage before getting a safety sticker.

But Conner strongly urged retention of the law without weakening amendments.

Surveys show that one out of every 12 adults takes tranquilizers regularly.

the huge rocket, forerunner of the Saturn 5 vehicle being developed to hoist three-man teams of Apollo astronauts toward the moon in 1969. The Saturn 1 will be seeking its eighth successful test flight without a miss. Two more test shots remain after this week's shot.

Pegasus will be the first working payload carried by a Saturn 1. On launching, it will be folded accordion-style in the nose of the booster. Once in orbit, a protective cover will fall away and the satellite will extend two wing-like panels to a span of 96 feet.

As Pegasus sweeps through an orbit ranging from 310 to 465 miles high, it is to report its collision with meteoroids, bits of space debris which zip through space at more than 25,000 miles an hour. The satellite is to provide a better idea on the distribution, size and velocity of the particles and how to protect spacecraft from them.

Ranger 8 is to continue the lunar photographic exploration begun last July by Ranger 7. Ranger 8 is to climax a 65-hour, quarter-million-mile journey by snapping more than 4,000 close-up pictures before crash-landing on the lunar surface.

The craft is to photograph an area nearer the moon's shadow line than the region pictured by Ranger 7. Here, the photos would have better definition of detail because of longer shadows cast by rocks, mountains and other features. The target zone is the Sea of Tranquility, in the east-central part of the moon as viewed from earth.

Men Injured As Auto Flips

Two men were hurt when the car in which they were riding overturned on the Irondale Hill near the home of Oliver Nicholson of Irondale shortly before midnight Saturday.

The car was driven by William Salmen, 20, of Northwest Canton. He suffered lacerations of the right finger, abrasions of the cheek and slight laceration of the ear.

A passenger, Roger Raffle, 25, of Irondale, suffered abrasions of the left knee and abrasions and contusions of the right leg. Both were treated at City Hospital. Raffle was admitted for a time, but later released.

The vehicle overturned on a curve at the top of the hill and then struck an embankment. Raffle said he was thrown into the back seat. Nicholson, who is the Irondale constable, investigated the mishap. The car was damaged heavily.

How Can I? By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — How can I remove crayon marks from fabrics?

A. — On unwashables, sponge with carbon tetrachloride. Use hot soap and water for cottons and linens, warm for silks and rayons. If traces of color still remain when the article has dried, sponge with denatured alcohol (dilute the alcohol with two parts water for use on rayon or colored fabrics). Javelle water can be used as a last resort on cottons, linens, and rayons.

U.S.-Tanzania Relations Worsen After Expulsion

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Relations between Tanzania and the United States deteriorated further today after the United States expelled a Tanzanian diplomat and the African nation called its ambassador home from Washington.

"We are a small country but we are as much a sovereign state as the United States," the Tanzanian government said in a statement Sunday night. "We do not bully and we do not like being bullied."

President Julius Nyerere summoned Ambassador Othman Shariff home Sunday after the United States announced the expulsion of Tanzania's No. 2 diplomat in Washington, Herbert Katua. The pair are Tanzania's only diplomats in Washington.

The U.S. action was in retaliation for Tanzania's expulsion of two American diplomats last month on charges of subversive activities.

The U.S. State Department said Sunday that "a thorough investigation" uncovered no basis for the charge against the expelled Americans. They were Frank Carlucci III, consul-general on the island of Zanzibar, and Robert Gordon, counselor of the U.S. Embassy in Dar es Salaam, the capital of Tanzania. The United States called Am-

Fine Decried In Boring Ln. Chicken Case

A Boring Ln. man was fined $25 and costs today in Municipal Court after Judge Samuel M. Chertoff was informed that he had complied with a court order to provide proper restraint for 25 fowls that had irked three neighbors.

Judge Chertoff handed the fine to James Timmons and cautioned him that if the chickens continue to run at large the court will have to take "more drastic action."

Timmons told the court that he had fenced in the property to restrain the chickens and it was verified by Gene Smith, sanitary police officer, who said he had inspected the property this morning.

Judge Chertoff explained to Raymond E. Rudabaugh of Boring Ln. and Anthony Cataldo of N. Shady Ln. Dr., two of three neighbors who had filed an affidavit in mid-December against Timmons accusing him of allowing the fowls to run at large, that there is no law against the defendant keeping chickens.

He suggested the complaining witnesses seek a change in the law.

The other complaining witness was Earl Wollam, also of N. Shady Ln. Dr., who was not present this morning.

passageway leading to the crater opening.

Mitchell, Hedy Miller, 22, a Boston, Mass., nurse; and Charles Bennett, 21, a Harvard graduate student, had squirmed through the passageway Saturday to reach the crater and an underground stream.

Miss Miller and Bennett then helped lower Mitchell into the pit. A nylon cord was anchored to a tripod and the other end was fastened to Mitchell's chest harness.

The underground stream feeds into the crater. Mitchell, who weighs 185 pounds, was soaked by the time he reached the base of the crater. He faltered on the hand-over-hand ascent.

Miss Miller said: "We didn't have the strength to pull him up. He got up within 10 feet of the opening but he started to stall directly in the water fall. He took off his gloves to handle the rope better."

"His hands got numb. He tried too hard and the cold got him."

"He kept talking slower and slower. Finally he didn't answer. His head lolled to one side."

"At that point Charles went for help."

Miss Miller stayed, "but nothing more."

U.S. Intensifies Its Viet Nam Reaction

WASHINGTON — The United States has spread the war from South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam, not because the Communist guerrillas did anything basically different but because they intensified what they had been doing.

Meanwhile, in a situation muddy for 20 years, no one knows whether a majority of the people in both Viet Nams prefer communism or would rather live under an American-backed government.

They have never had a chance to express themselves in a vote. One thing is certain: the people of South Viet Nam are not 100 per cent against the Red guerrillas.

In the past, with few exceptions, the guerrillas killed Americans and South Vietnamese soldiers on the fighting fronts. Of the more than 370 Americans killed in this war, more than 260 were killed in this kind of fighting.

More recently the guerrillas killed and wounded Americans in attacks on their air bases and billets. Killing Americans that way instead of on the fighting fronts, was not a difference in kind but in degree.

But the United States has taken this as a challenge. President Johnson ordered retaliation and American bombers hit North Viet Nam, although the United States had sought to avoid this lest it spread the war.

Any American attack on North Viet Nam might — and still may — bring in the Red Chinese and the Russians, directly or indirectly, and thus turn a small war into a very big one.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has explained that the retaliation against North Viet Nam was made necessary because the guerrilla attacks on the bases are considered a test of the American will to resist.

This country has stated in the past that its purpose in helping South Viet Nam against the guerrillas was to save both that country and all Southeast Asia from a Communist takeover.

The muddy condition of this conflict started in 1945 when France, although it had held the area as a colony three-quarters of a century, still refused it independence. The Vietnamese Communists fought them.

The French not only lacked support of the Vietnamese people but were so feeble they needed American help as early as 1951. In the end the French were smashed and had to get out.

A Geneva conference in 1954 agreed on a division of Viet Nam into North and South — the Communists were left in control of the North — with elections by all Vietnamese in two years to choose a single government.

American-backed Ngo Dinh Diem, in a referendum in South Viet Nam only, got himself elected chief of state and, later, president. He wouldn't buy the idea of an election in both Viet Nams to create a single government.

He argued the Reds in the North would not permit free elections there. He was undoubtedly right. But it is very questionable there would have been free elections in South Viet Nam, where Diem operated with an iron hand.

He asked the United States to send in men to train his troops. This country sent in more and more men, called advisers. But, since so many have been killed in the fighting, they were hardly mere advisers.

As more guerrillas moved into South Viet Nam from the North, the war broadened, all of it limited to South Viet Nam.

But the South Vietnamese, without experience in democracy, split into factions. Led by military men with ambitions of their own, they showed less than whole-hearted support for Diem, who was assassinated in 1963.

Then South Vietnamese factional fights got out of hand. One government after another was toppled. The guerrillas took over 60 per cent of the country. South Viet Nam was collapsing in chaos, despite American help.

Then the guerrillas stepped up their pace by attacking American bases in South Viet Nam. The United States, instead of stepping up the pace against the guerrillas in South Viet Nam, did what it had tried to avoid: it broadened the war with attacks on North Viet Nam.

Lessons For GOP

By Raymond Moley

I venture to recommend two books for careful reading by a number of Republican leaders: The national chairman, Dean Burch, national chairman-elect, Ray Bliss, congressional leaders, Dirksen and Ford; Bob Wilson, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, also Barry Goldwater and Richard Nixon.

The books are the political memoirs of Lord Woolton and Lord Kilmuir. The latter was, before his elevation to the Woolton, David Maxwell Fyfe. These two men, along with Winston Churchill, were most responsible for the revival of the crushing defeat in 1945 and for the momentum which kept it in office for 13 years.

THE KILMUIR book was published last year in England. It's the story of how a great party which was almost obliterated learned the hard way to recovery.

The Conservative party had suffered great defeats before — in 1830, 1846, 1880, and 1905. But the defeat in 1945 was not only unexpected; it was the most crushing of all.

What made it the more remarkable was that the party had held power (with a war cabinet that included members of the opposition) during a war that ended in victory. At its head was the incomparable Churchill.

For a time, the thinned Conservative benches were silent, stunned and bewildered. Meanwhile, the new Labor members, many of whom were previously unknown to Whitehall, were in a hilarious mood. Those new members descended upon Whitehall like conquerors and freely demonstrated their contempt for traditional amenities.

One Conservative, according to Kilmuir, said, "Just like a crowd of damned constituents." Leading Labor ministers such as Aneurin Bevan made free to taunt even the redoubtable Churchill. One of them said that Churchill was "afraid to debate."

THE ANSWER was, "Why should I be afraid? I can assure the right honorable gentleman that the spectacle of a number of middle-aged gentlemen being in a state of uproar and fury is quite exhilarating to me."

During the year following the defeat, Churchill realized that he had never considered party organization as a factor in politics. He had never had chief party responsibility in peace-time.

He called Lord Woolton back to public life and made him chairman of the party. Woolton, who until the war had been director of a great retail store chain and never a politician, took hold. He simply applied the rules of business salesmanship to party rebuilding.

WOOLTON then made David Maxwell Fyfe chairman of a committee on organization. This presented the famous Maxwell Fyfe Report, which would be excellent reading for every American state chairman in 1965.

It developed plans for finances, for the local and central organizations of the party, for the role of the annual party conferences, and the selection of candidates.

Most important was the recruiting of "agents" or managers, one for each constituency — a full-time, paid, professional organizer.

With these preparations and with a vast public disillusionment because of the blunders of the Labor government, there came the general election of 1950. When that election was called, the Conservatives had established 527 constituency agents. Labor had only 279. And that was the decisive difference. The huge Labor majority was reduced to 17.

While Labor increased its popular vote by 1½ million, the Conservatives polled 2½ million more than in 1945.

With this narrow margin, the Attlee government staggered on for 18 months. Then the Conservatives took over and held power until October, 1964. But now the great strength of the mustering again, and no doubt the party will once more take power this year.

The Woolton and the Kilmuir stories are lessons in organizations that should be noted by Republicans.

Friendship-With Reservations

The Soviet Union and Communist China have observed the 15th anniversary of the signing of their economic and military treaty by proclaiming unity against imperialism.

The unity theme is not new, but the world was watching with particular interest this year because of the crisis in Viet Nam. And it may be that the two Communist powers are actually closer together because of this crisis.

It's interesting, however, to look back and try to read between the lines, if such is possible in Red pronouncements.

Last year, the Soviet Union observed the anniversary by blaming Peking for the "undesirable turn" in relations between the Communist neighbors.

A year earlier, Chang Chih-hsiang, secretary of the Chinese-Soviet Friendship Association, had declared that the "great friendship and unity between the Chinese and Soviet people are indestructible." At the same time he attacked the revisionism of President Tito of Yugoslavia. Whenever Communist Chinese bother to be subtle, they attack Russian Communists through their friendship with the Yugoslavs.

The Soviet Union since 1959 has steadily reduced economic and military aid to Red China. Thousands of Russian technical advisors and specialists were recalled in the summer of 1960. Earlier the Russians had cut off nuclear assistance.

The new breed in the Kremlin indicated at the recent meeting of the Supreme Soviet no change from the old Khrushchev positions. High priority was given to consumer goods and living standards. Increased freedom was promised in industrial management, and extension of probing feelers toward the West was resumed.

A flirtation with French President De Gaulle has become apparent—though it must be admitted that France seems to be doing the wooing. China also has been making eyes at De Gaulle.

Pravda on Jan. 31 said the Soviet Union looks with favor on President Johnson's invitation for Russian leaders to visit the United States. The announcement was in a sense a double slur on the Chinese Reds, for it came only hours after a Kremlin announcement that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin would lead a Soviet delegation to North Viet Nam. Hanoi is generally considered Red China's fief.

As pointed out earlier, Viet Nam possibly has altered some of the above thinking, but, regardless, it still seems safe to say that with friends like the Russians, the Chinese Reds need no enemies And vice versa.

Bearing Fruit

The six-week discussion on juvenile delinquency sponsored by the Lions Club at its weekly meetings is bearing fruit.

As a result of the comprehensive program, steps have been taken to establish a new permanent organization whose objective would be to assist youngsters who appear to need help for one reason or another as they go about shaping their futures.

Lending aid to juveniles is not a new thing. Groups with this very purpose in mind already are functioning here and elsewhere in the district—and doing some good, though the work is demanding and at times frustrating.

The new organization, well aware of the efforts already under way, is quick to point out that it hopes to work in cooperation with these groups, with the hope that needed guidance may be broadened.

The mere setting up of an organization is not a final answer to any problem. The interest is there, however, and if it can be maintained at its present level the eventual results could prove gratifying.

ing to set up with the participation of the governors, the House Republican Conference and the so-called Wednesday Club.

In addition to these are the policies bequeathed to the party by last year's national convention's platform committee and enclaves of party influence in such key congressional committee as the Senate Finance Committee.

There also is the Republican Policy Committee and the individual and sometimes diverse views of party leaders, descending in importance from the only living former Republican president, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Or, looking at the leaders from the other direction, they are ascending in importance from Barry M. Goldwater, who says he never will run for president again, a renunciation that has not been made by Richard M. Nixon, Nelson A. Rockefeller, William W. Scranton and Margaret Chase Smith.

No one knows how it can be done. But until it has been done one way or another, the American electorate will have as sketchy an image of the GOP elephant as those blind men of India, when each conceived of an elephant as that small part which he could reach with his own seeking fingers.

With Restraint!

To the credit of teen-age girls here and nearby, The Review received no tear-or-scream-punctuated calls during that fateful period when Ringo Starr's marriage rocked the Beatles set.

Some may have been shocked at word that wedding bells temporarily had replaced the beat of the drums that has become Ringo's trademark. But if so, they displayed far more restraint and character than a lot of other teen-agers across the nation who reacted in both amusing and tragic ways.

You've held up admirably, girls. We're proud of the manner in which you accepted the news heard around the teenage world!

By Martin Miller

He cited as an example the prospect of space travel, while here on earth the ancient mode of travel by ship was tied up by a dock strike and human relations in the railroad industry were disrupted.

Just for the heck of it, I'll bet you a dime man won't know all about the physical sciences in 50 or 100 years. Be a sport and take me up on it.

A dyed-in-the-wool capitalist regards a socialist as a barbarian and vice versa. Thus it came as a shock to hear one of my from-rags-to-riches friends say, "We have almost the ideal setup in this country because we have a private enterprise system which supports a modified socialist government."

Really, Twill, that came as close to heresy as I ever heard from this fellow. Further discussion brought out that he considered the economic system partly controlled, about as much as the government is socialist.

His point was that the economic system could not operate as well as it does without the government, and the government sure couldn't operate the way it does without the taxes it collects from enterprise.

Union Chiefs Eye 1965 Elections

By Victor Riesel

During many private rocking chair conferences, Lyndon Johnson tells his favorite visitors that politics is the art of the possible.

Now some of his labor allies are revising the slogan. They're making politics the art of the impossible—or what professionals of both parties have believed impossible.

Just the other day hundreds of regional labor leaders received a letter from their central political headquarters warning them not to forget this November's election day, though 1965 is an "off year."

This communication advised them to get into at least 1,000 municipal elections in cities of 10,000 people or more (in 43 states).

And they will.

THEY CERTAINLY will follow the suggestions made in the message which was sent them by the hard campaigning, hustings-hopping Al Barkin, national director of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE). These cities are the basic pegs for their national political network.

The hundreds of state and city labor officials will unleash this "impossible" campaign because it will be a rehearsal for 1966 — and thus the jumping-off point for the 1968 presidential election.

The Barkin note had no flourishes. It said simply: "Memorandum to State, County and City COPEs:

"Attached is a list of state and municipal elections, in cities of 10,000 or more, scheduled in 1965.

"We know you will want to take particular note of those taking place within your area of operation.

"CITY ELECTIONS this year are important in themselves, because the officials elected are closely involved with local problems of immediate and direct concern to the voters. They are equally important because of their potential effect on state and national elections in 1966.

"The 1965 elections afford a splendid opportunity to maintain and improve existing COPE machinery, to train new recruits, and to provide additional activities for those who did such a good job in the COPE program in 1964.

"We hope that in 1965 you will regard the elections in your area, not only in the light of their own very real significance, but as an opportunity to broaden all aspects of our political education program."

A THOUSAND elections take a lot of red pins on the maps of states ranging from Florida to Alaska — not to mention money and manpower.

The labor movement has coordinated its skilled campaigners. They do their homework. They know their districts. Though they do not call themselves a political party, they have the smoothest political machine in the land. They operate the year round.

On this network will be based the liberal-labor campaign next year for "rebuilding the Democratic party (in the South) with a new orientation."

As early as last November, a confidential COPE report to its board of directors urged the search for candidates who are "not only able and articulate but known and recognized in the community from which they run.

spired by the Communist Viet Cong. Troops fired into one of the demonstrations.

Reports said that about 2,000 demonstrators demanded an end to air and artillery attacks on populated areas and attempted to storm the office of the district chief at Thang Binh, about 20 miles south of Da Nang.

In Saigon, Vietnamese leaders appeared ready to announce the formation of a new civilian government with Dr. Phan Huy Quat, a former foreign minister, as its head.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, South Viet Nam's strong man, also was expected to announce a 20-member advisory council, including six military officers, to serve as a temporary legislative arm of the government.

Khanh's ruling military council reportedly picked Quat, 55, after three other candidates turned down the premiership. A doctor and opponent of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem, Quat served as foreign minister last year under Khanh.

Quat's Cabinet reportedly includes men who are expected to win the support of various groups whose opposition has toppled past governments in Saigon. Quat is a native of North Viet Nam, and of 13 top Cabinet members reportedly chosen so far, nine are either from the North or central Viet Nam.

The most active political pressure groups in the country, including the militant Buddhists, are led by North or central Vietnamese.

The government has been headed by acting Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh who was appointed by Khanh Jan. 28 after Premier Tran Van Huong was ousted in a military coup. Khanh retains real authority as commander of the armed forces.

Although the fighting in Viet Nam has slackened, the Communists were ordered today to strike harder against U.S. and South Vietnamese forces. Radio Hanoi said the order was issued by Nguyen Huu Tho, president of the Central Committee of the Viet Cong's Presidium.

It called upon the Viet Cong to "deal deadly blows at the enemy" and said that the war is becoming "more and more ruthless as it is drawing near to success."

North Viet Nam charged that two U.S.-South Vietnamese ships shelled one of its villages Sunday. It said that North Vietnamese troops set both craft afire.

The Communist regime also announced that it was requesting the International Control Commission to "withdraw immediately all its fixed teams" because repeated U.S.-South Vietnamese air raids made it difficult to guarantee their safety.

The commission, composed of India, Poland and Canada, was set up to supervise the 1954 Indochina armistice.

U.S. military sources said the bodies of seven Americans have been found in the wreckage of the U.S. enlisted men's billet at Qui Nhon which the Viet Cong bombed last Wednesday. Twelve other Americans are still missing and presumed dead in the rubble, and two other Americans were killed in the explosion.

Evacuation of American dependents was nearly completed Monday, with only about 130 left of more than 1,800 who were in the country. The rest will leave Thursday and Friday. Among them is Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor, wife of the U.S. ambassador.

Negroes Set Selma March In Vote Drive

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Two leaders on opposite sides of the civil rights conflict here, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Sheriff James G. Clark, were to leave sick beds today to lead their respective charges as Negroes planned a massive right-to-vote march.

Negro leaders, armed with their first parade permit, called for a minimum of 1,000 in the march on the Dallas County courthouse.

King promised to leave his sick bed in Atlanta to lead the procession from two Negro churches about 10 blocks through downtown Selma to the courthouse.

The 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner was put to bed Saturday for treatment of a cold and exhaustion.

The Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, who spoke in King's place at a mass meeting Sunday night, said he would walk at the head of the freedom parade with King. Shuttlesworth, a longtime Birmingham civil rights leader, is now pastor of a church in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The other ailing principal, Sheriff Clark, also was reported to be preparing to leave his hospital bed and direct his deputies during the march.

The sheriff, who has arrested more than 3,000 Negroes since the voter-registration campaign began a month ago, was admitted to the hospital Friday, suffering from chest pains.

His physician said Clark, 43, was kept in the hospital for rest and observation.

The Dallas County Board of Registrars is convening today for the last time this month to receive voter applications.

The parade permit — first given the Negroes since the drive began Jan. 18 — was handed to officers of the Dallas County Voters League Sunday night by Wilson Baker, Selma public safety director.

The letter said: "Your organization is hereby granted a permit to walk 600 adult citizens of Dallas County from Brown's Chapel A.M.E. Church to the Dallas County courthouse."

Concerning the 600 figure, Baker said, "that's the number they asked for."

The letter specified the route the Negroes were to follow, using the sidewalks.

After the march, Negro leaders said those in the group seeking to register would sign the voter applicant priority list set up a week ago.

Q. — How can I remedy slightly scorched woollens?

A. — Wet the blemish, then rub dry cornstarch over it. Brush off the cornstarch when the article is dry.

Q. — How can I remove grease spots from clothes?

A. — One good remedy is to cover the stains with flour and, after a clean white blotter has been placed over the flour, iron over it. The grease will be absorbed, and the flour then be shaken out.

New Parleys Set In Docks' Tieup

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — they were summoned to Washington last Wednesday. Similar talks resume in Miami Wednesday. Those taking part will be Judge Henderson, president of ILA Local 1416, Miami; David Stowe, special consultant to the Labor Department, and David A. Watts, head of the Jacksonville Port Authority.

Watts represents shippers from North Carolina through Florida. Longshoremen agreed last week to return to work at New York and other major Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports, but local disputes continue to tie up ports at Galveston-Houston, Miami and Hampton Roads, Va.

International Longshoremen Association officials meet at Galveston today prior to the resumption of joint negotiations Tuesday.

Ralph A. Massey, ILA vice president in charge of the Gulf Coast district, the shippers' representatives and Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds will meet in Galveston Tuesday for the first time since showed signs of wanting to quit because of the air raids.

Calls for Communist unity came from both Peking and Moscow. Washington authorities said this was to be expected. They said it did not prove the Red rivals were ready to bury their deep differences for the sake of united action in Southeast Asia.

On the diplomatic front there was a flurry by would-be peace-makers with little encouragement from the principals. Various suggestions came from U. N. Secretary-General U. Thant, Indian Prime Minister L. B. Shastri, the French, the Canadians, the British and others.

Washington did not foreclose negotiations at some future date, but saw no basis for peace talks now with the United States strongly committed to staying in South Viet Nam and the Reds demanding that it pull out.

Hungary joined in the Communist demonstrations against the U.S. action in Viet Nam in a spectacular way Saturday. Marchers smashed the first-floor windows of the American Legation in Budapest, stripped down the U.S. seal, wrecked the cars of two U.S. diplomats and tossed furniture about inside the building.

The State Department charged Hungary with staging the attack and called in the Hungarian charge d'affaires to lodge what it termed a strong protest. It warned such actions could impair the lengthy U.S.-Hungarian talks aimed at improving relations between the two countries.

Rusk said on a non-network television program — "Anatomy of a Diplomat" — that the United States is going "to press sharply" for "full protection for our personnel and official installations."

Support for Johnson's air reprisal order came from two Republicans — Henry Cabot Lodge, former ambassador to South Viet Nam, and Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania — and Democratic Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut.

Lodge said in a radio interview on WNEW, New York that the retaliation order was "sagacious, as well as a brave decision." He added that bombs alone would not defeat the Reds and that the United States should stay in South Viet Nam until the guerrillas are beaten.

Dodd said on the CBS radio and television program "Face the Nation" that if the Communist aggression is not stopped now "we'll be stopping it in Seattle." He called for more help from U.S. allies in Asia and suggested also that Johnson make a radio-television report to the nation on Viet Nam.

Lorain Police Charged With Curbing Raid

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — The state liquor enforcement chief for the five-county area around Cleveland says state agents were hampered by Lorain police in a series of raids on bars and homes here.

Nineteen persons were arrested in raids here and in Elyria early Sunday on charges that included soliciting for prostitution, serving drinks to minors and operating bootleg joints.

Ralph E. Kreiger, the enforcement chief, said Lorain police deliberately tried to delay state agents to try to cut down on the number of raids. He said they did this by demanding that the agents complete legal paper work while the raids were being made instead of allowing it to be done later.

Mayor Woodrow W. Mathna declined comment on Kreiger's criticism of the Lorain police. Kreiger said the state agents deliberately did not inform Lorain police or the sheriff's department of the raids in advance.

"Lorain is one of the toughest cities in Ohio for agents to enforce the liquor laws," he said. "We get frequent complaints of violations in Lorain, especially sales to minors."

"But the violators are generally suspicious of strangers. Our undercover agents have learned that every violator being investigated gets the word we are in Lorain as soon as we make our first raiding stop."

A dozen state liquor enforcement agents filtered into town all day Saturday and started making their raids shortly after midnight. They continued until dawn Sunday.

One Lorain bar was cited for permitting soliciting for prostitution. Another was charged with selling liquor to a minor. Fourteen persons were arrested here and five in Elyria.

Officers Nab 11 At Midland After Fracas

Six adults and five juveniles, all residents of Midland and Alliquippa, were arrested by Midland police late Saturday night as they broke up what was termed a "riot" in front of the Masonic Hall on Ohio Ave.

The battle, involving 50 to 60 youths and young men, apparently was the result of trouble in Alliquippa a year ago, police said. The fracas broke out during a private party at the Masonic Lodge.

Four Midland residents and two Alliquippa men were cited. The Midland residents are Ben Irvine Jr., James Jones and William Edwards, all 18, and Paul Slappy, 19. They are charged with violation of a Pennsylvania law covering "riots and affray." The Alliquippa men, Johnny Wims, 22, and Eugene Smith, 19, are accused of disorderly conduct.

The Midland residents were due for hearings today before Squire Paul McGeehan of Midland. The two Alliquippa men will appear before the squire at 7 tonight. Two Midland juveniles and three from Alliquippa will be referred to juvenile authorities at the Allegheny Detention Home, police said.

Officers David Jakes and Mike Borato answered the first call to the area of the lodge home. It was reported 10 to 12. They said they found "the street full of youths in fights."

The two officers called for assistance. Responding were Sgt. Vincent D'Itri, who was in charge of the desk at headquarters. Patrolman William Monac, who was off duty, and Mike Hayden, assistant police chief in Ohioville. David Scherha, chief of Midland Civil Defense, took over D'Itri's duties at the desk.

Numerous residents of the area helped in quelling the fights, police said. Several of the youths suffered minor injuries. Three were treated at Crucible Emergency Hospital and one of the trio later was transferred to Rochester General Hospital.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

First You Rent A Freighter . . .

"Big blondes are easy to get. I just call central casting. But where do I go to get a big boat?" producer - director George Sidney was saying, as he related the troubles experienced in finding a freighter for his first TV film.

The film tells the tragic story of thousands of Hal Humphrey refugees still floating the seven seas as virtual slaves because they have no papers. Unscrupulous ship owners let these homeless wanderers work for their passage and perhaps a dollar a year for bookkeeping purposes.

IN FILMING this drama ("Who Has Seen the Wind?") for the second of the six United Nations TV specials, to be seen over ABC next Friday, Sidney had relatively no trouble assembling his cast of Maria Schell, Edward G. Robinson, Theodore Bikel, Veronica Cartwright and Stanley Baker.

"But I wasted a lot of time looking up the owners of freighters and soon found they don't know where their ships are. Then I got smart and contacted their agents. Sure, ships are like actors. They've got agents and, believe me, the good ones are booked ahead for months," Sidney informed me.

Sidney would have liked to build his own freighter, but a $400,000 budget couldn't support such extravagance. He was dreaming of the time 15 years ago when MGM built a 135-foot showboat and floated it for him and Ava Gardner on a back lot made to look like the Mississippi River for the movie "Showboat."

WITH PILOT and private airplane, Sidney flew down the coast of Mexico to look over some ships which agents had spotted for him.

"At Mazatlan we saw the Culiacan, a 14,000-ton baby that looked pretty good, but you don't hire the first blonde they bring you, so we went on to Manzanillo to look at the Santa Luciano, which was no relation to Lucky Luciano," Sidney quipped.

He was telling this boat saga to me at Hillcrest Country Club, a famous luncheon hangout for such comics as George Jessel, Groucho Marx and Phil Silvers. It's a kind of free-for-all "Can You Top This?" and Sidney was caught up in the atmosphere.

Although the Santa Luciano was used for some interior cabin scenes, Sidney ultimately hired the Culiacan, changed its name to Hirundo in typical Hollywood fashion and broke the young Mexican captain's heart by insisting the ship must be aged about 40 years in appearance.

THE RENAMED Culiacan cost Sidney $1,000 a day for 26 days and nearly that amount again to make it look rusty and old. To make sure no particular country could be offended, Sidney had to have a no-nation flag designed and also the uniforms worn by the local port tenders.

A heavy storm hit the Culiacan for two days of its cruise outside the Mazatlan harbor. A description of this adventure in Photoplay magazine makes Melville's "Moby Dick" as tame as paddling in your bathtub.

The weather did prevent Sidney's getting all of the dialogue on the sound track, and this meant "looping" some of it later.

"I HAD TO FLY to Germany to loop Maria Schell, because she was already there making a movie before everything was finished up in Mazatlan," Sidney added.

After the Hillcrest lunch Sidney was going to MGM to meet composer - conductor Johnny Green, who was scoring his original "Who Has Seen the Wind?" theme into the film with singer Nancy Wilson.

I watched Sidney get into his Rolls Royce for the cruise to MGM, then fell to ruminating about the incongruity of it all.

Sweet Adelines Plan Costumes

Final plans for the costume for the forthcoming competition were outlined at the meeting of Sweet Adelines Friday night at the Potters Savings & Loan Co. annex.

Mrs. Lorida Harvey, uniform chairman, briefed the group on what the committee has selected to wear at the event March 25-28 at New York City.

Mrs. Jan Dietz, president, announced the rehearsal this week will be held Wednesday at the Glenmoor offices of the Ohio Valley Gas Co. There will be no practice Friday because of the Music Show in Cleveland, which several members plan to attend.

An invitation was read to the Charter Night program of the Holmes Echo Hills Chapter March 13 at the Castle Theater of Millersburg.

Mrs. Nancy Beaver directed singing.

The next regular session will be held Feb. 28 at the annex.

Bridgeport-Cincinnati Superhighway Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—New and improved highways are considered the road to progress for under developed southeast Ohio.

This is accepted by federal planners concerned with the Appalachia Redevelopment program, state planners concerned with that project and formers of the state's own regional development plan.

Where to build the roads to do the most good is the current problem.

Normally new highways are built where traffic is too heavy for an existing road. But in developing an area the object in effect is to create traffic through the new road by building up the area's industry to provide jobs and its recreational resources to draw tourists.

Gov. James A. Rhodes and the Ohio Valley Regional Development Council, which he appointed to formulate the state's policy on redeveloping the southeastern counties, have disagreed with what they understand to be the major highway projects for Ohio under the federal program.

The major federal projects are improvement and relocation of U.S. 50 east and west between Cincinnati and Parkersburg, W. Va., and U.S. 23 north and south between Portsmouth and the Ross - Pickaway County line.

Rhodes said: "We can take care of 23 and 50 with our own state program."

Council members said they are concerned that improving these highways will not necessarily improve access to southeast Ohio.

They and the governor favor instead a new superhighway called "The Appalachian Way." It would link Bridgeport and Cincinnati on opposite ends of Ohio's Appalachian area, and continue on through the multi-state area ending in Maryland.

State planners also are meeting to see how they might seek a change in the federal highway project-choices, and to get ready for a "quick start" when federal allocations are made. The first meeting has been called by the governor Tuesday in Columbus.

The highway program must serve communities in the area, said William J. Sheehan, director of the Institute for Regional Development at Ohio University, in the heart of Ohio's redevelopment area. The Institute, set up by a federal grant last year, has undertaken an inventory of possible industrial sites, educational needs and health needs in all communities in the area.

"We have to get the kids to school in the easiest possible way, same for getting people to hospitals and to work," Sheehan said. "These hospitals, recreational, educational and industrial resources will be heavily dependent on good highways to make them accessible."

Sheehan said the U. S. 50 project as envisioned by the federal planners and the "Appalachian Way" proposed by the state are "one and the same."

"By saying they are going to improve U.S. 50," Sheehan explained, "the government doesn't mean it has to be done on the same site as the present road. A corridor as wide as 50 miles across has been chosen and the highway can be built anywhere within that corridor."

The governor says his meeting with leaders of the 28 southeastern Ohio counties is to organize plans for participation in the federal program.

Ohio development planners hope to have projects ready to start immediately after federal grants are made.

In addition to the Rhodes' appointed Ohio Valley Council and the Ohio U. Institute, the third group represented at the meeting will be the Southeastern Ohio Regional Council, with 500 members from the region's 28 counties.

West Germany, Egypt Head For New Crisis

CAIRO (AP) — Relations between Egypt and West Germany appeared headed for a new crisis today as the United Arab Republic was reported preparing a red-carpet reception for East German President Walter Ulbricht.

Cairo newspapers reported that Ulbricht would stay at Kubbeh Palace, President Gamal Abdel Nasser's top guest house, when he visits here later this month.

Relations between Egypt and West Germany were near the breaking point last week until Bonn bowed to Arab pressure and agreed to halt arms shipments to Israel. But West Germany warned that "serious consequences" could ensue if Ulbricht is given full honors during his visit.

Bonn indicated it would interpret such honors as de facto recognition of the Communist East German regime. The West German government considers itself the only legal representative of all the Germans and usually breaks diplomatic relations with nations that recognize East Germany.

Cairo newspapers said Ulbricht will arrive in Alexandria by ship Feb. 24 and stay for six days.

His visit is to include trips to the Aswan Dam the Soviet Union is building on the Nile, Port Said, Luxor and through the provinces, the newspapers said.

The president of the West German Bundestag, Eugen Gerstenmaier, said in a radio speech in Bonn that Ulbricht's reception in Cairo "can only be regarded as a hostile act directed against all Germans."

Authoritative sources in Jerusalem said the Israeli Cabinet had voted unanimously to condemn West Germany's decision to halt arms shipments to Israel.

Caucus Of Conferees To Precede Pay Talks

Union conferees will caucus immediately prior to opening negotiations with management and not next Friday at headquarters here, the International Brotherhood of Operative Pottery explained today in clarifying its original announcement on reopening of its agreement with the U. S. Pottery Association.

Since the parley on the wage agreement is set tentatively for April 21, the pre-conference caucus of the union representatives probably will be held April 19, following a long-standing custom, the IBOP said.

Plans for reopening of the current three year - agreement with dinnerware manufacturers were announced Friday by the international union. The IBOP said local unions will receive official notifications and instructions soon.

100 See Hair-Styling Contest Opening Beauty Salon Week

National Beauty Salon Week was ushered in with a hair-styling contest sponsored by the East Liverpool Affiliate of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association Sunday afternoon at the A. & H. School of Beauty Culture. About 100 attended.

Clyde Silverthorn, operator of the Ceramic Beauty Salon, won first place with his "swing-heart" fashion. Miss Lynn White, an ivory blonde, was the model.

Clarence Gilbert, with Miss Jo Ann Elliott as model, was first runner-up. He used his own version of the "swingheart" to style the warm blonde hair of his model. He is co-owner of the Ceramic Beauty Salon.

Miss Sue Davis, associated with the JoAnne Maria Styling Center, was second runner-up. Her model was Mrs. Nancy Davis, whose black tresses featured another of the "swing-heart" fashions.

Members of state committees who served as judges were Mrs. Betty Cole of Canton, Mrs. Goldie Boerner of Massillon and Mrs. Mary Eileen Hagan of Salem.

Floral decorations highlighted the platforms where the models were seated.

Refreshments were served at a buffet table covered with a white cloth overlaid with red maline. Five tier candelabra and a large red heart completed the setting. Red lights highlighted the large silver fountain which sprayed the punch.

Mrs. Mildred Johnston, chairman of the tea, was assisted by Mrs. Lucy Rowley, Mr. and Mrs. Parker Van Dyne, Victor Bovine, Miss Carol Ross and Mrs. Kathy Howell.

Committees for the week's activities are Mrs. Helen Clark, chairman; Mrs. Alma Dotson, co-chairman; Mrs. Eleanor Doak, welfare work; Mrs. Marie Gallagher, tickets; Gilbert, program; Mrs. Johnston, ways and means; Silverthorn, trophies; Mrs. Evelyn Messenger, stage decorations, and Mrs. Marian Zelasko, publicity.

The main event of the week will be the seventh annual hair beauty and fashion Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. at Westgate School.

Ohio Budget Slated Before Legislators

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes reveals his record budget in record fashion tonight.

The $4 billion package Rhodes will hand a joint session of the Ohio Legislature will be presented for the first time on live television.

Ohioans can join their elected representatives, through a statewide network, watching Rhodes deliver his "state of the state" message.

Rhodes will say that the $4.1 billion spending program he proposes for the next two years can be handled without new or increased taxes.

The budget includes more money for education—including $200 a year pay raises for school teachers—more for highways, more for welfare, more for natural resources and more for nearly all other major phases of state government.

The $1.4 billion general fund budget also is a record and includes about $800 million for education.

The Department of Education will get more than $600 million. Highways and highway safety are budgeted for more than $800 million.

Most details of the budget—including the total of the capital improvements portion, which may approximate $200 million—are still secret and won't be made public until tonight.

But the budget will provide for a $100 million six-year program of improvements planned by the Natural Resources Department. It will allocate about $270 million for public welfare and another $180 million for mental health.

It also will provide higher salaries for state legislators and many other state employees, including judges.

Once the budget is presented, House Finance Committee Chairman Ralph E. Fisher, R-Wayne, will introduce legislation to make the necessary appropriations. His committee then will begin hearings on the bills.

The task of keeping the budget up to date will be easier this year because the bulk of the budget is automated.

The general fund appropriations bill has been put into a data processing machine which can print its 2,500 lines in four and a half minutes.

As individual items in the budget are revised, the changes are fed into the machine—which then re-computes the various totals and reconciliations to make things balance.

This used to require hours—or sometimes days—of calculation. It often was several days after revisions were completed before a corrected bill was completed for final action.

Now a revised bill, including the previous day's changes, will be available each morning. And a final measure will be ready as soon as all revisions are completed.

New Offices Due 3 Congressmen From Tri-State

The Tri-State District's three U.S. Representatives are scheduled for quarters in the new Rayburn House Office Building in Washington, according to Congressional sources.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Ohio's 18th District, Rep. Frank M. Clark of Pennsylvania's 25th District, and Rep. Arch A. Moore of West Virginia's 1st District are among 169 members of the House who will move with their staffs into the plush structure starting about March 1.

Length of continuous service in the House, not political affiliation, is the governing factor in assignment of office space in the new building as well as the older two.

However, some senior congressmen decided against moving into the Rayburn building, making room for a number of others serving only their fifth consecutive term.

Legislators See School Needs As Key Ohio Issues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—School matters and especially school money are considered the paramount issues facing the current session of the Ohio Legislature, an Associated Press poll indicates.

Nearly 50 legislators responded to the poll in which they were asked to name the key problems faced by Ohio. More than 60 per cent listed increased state support for schools and said they would press for bigger appropriations.

Virtually the same number mentioned the controversy over extending school bus transportation to private and parochial students but were divided on the issue. Forty-eight per cent favored the bill, 39 per cent was undecided, and 13 per cent opposed.

So-called "fair housing" legislation was mentioned by more than half the lawmakers who responded with the majority stating they were undecided on the issue.

Only a few of the legislators mentioned possible sources for additional school revenue but 25 per cent expressed opposition to a proposed one per cent boost in the state sales tax.

It appeared significant that the strong support for more educational spending was non-partisan.

Next to school issues, the lawmakers who were polled said they regarded new legislation covering teen-age drivers one of the state's most pressing needs.

Also drawing noteworthy support were bills calling for annual automobile inspections (23 per cent) and toughening statutes covering strip mine reclamation (20 per cent).

Lisbon District Fire

Hits Stone Crusher

LISBON — Fire Saturday at 7 p.m. caused an undetermined amount of damage to a stone crusher near Logtown, rented by the Center Township trustees.

Raymond Shive, a resident of the area, called the village fire department after the tarpaulin cover and belts and one tire caught fire. Workers covered the crusher with tarps and set a salamander heater underneath to keep the equipment warm. The tarp apparently got hot and set the equipment on fire. Firemen made no estimate of damage, but said the belts and tire were a complete loss.

Local Woman Unhurt When Auto Upsets

A 30-year-old city woman escaped injury when her car overturned Sunday near Salineville in one of three district mishaps reported over the weekend by the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

Emma Lou Freeman, 744 Sophia St., was headed south about 2 a.m. on Township Rd. 755 just south of Route 39 when her 1962 compact auto veered off the right side of the highway.

The car returned to the road, but swung again off the right side and upset, officers said. There was moderate damage to the auto.

Janet Louise Armstrong, 17, of Lisbon R. D. 4 and Donald Lee Ridgley, 17, of Lisbon R. D. 2 were cited by the patrol following a three-car "chain" collision on Route 30 just west of Lisbon yesterday afternoon at 2:50 p.m.

The patrol said a car driven by James Robert Uebelhart, 28, of Canton swerved to avoid a dog which ran onto the road, and Ridgley's car struck the rear of Uebelhart's and the girl's car then rammed the rear of Ridgley's.

The two teen-agers were cited for failure to stop in the assured clear distance. The dog was unhurt, officers added.

Two Sebring youths were injured in a collision Saturday night on Route 9 four miles south of Salem.

William Campbell, 16, and a passenger in his car — Donald Blackman — suffered possible neck injuries after Campbell's car, headed north, sideswiped oncoming autos operated by Bruce Lee Hull, 18, of Kensington R. D. 1 and Beverly Jean Griffith, 19, of Salem.

Campbell was charged with driving left of center.

Officers are seeking the identity of a motorist whose car knocked down a stop sign in Glenmoor Saturday night. A backing car damaged the sign at the intersection of Route 267 and Lisbon St. Ext. between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m. Sunday.

Deputies Investigate Knifing Of Woman

Columbiana County sheriff's deputies today continued investigation of a reported Sunday knifing of a Y. & O. Rd. woman who was in "fair" condition today at City Hospital with an arm wound.

Agnes Linville, 48, was treated at the Capehart Motel yesterday morning at 5:10 by a Lisbon physician. Sheriff Russell VanFossan said.

The woman told Deputy Herman Wellman she was walking near a diner in Lisbon when someone attempted to grab her purse and cut her arm when she raised it to protect herself.

of Grimms Bridge struck the railing as he turned into the alley from Broadway, officers said.

Emerging from the alley was a 1962 four-door sedan operated by Elmer Lilly, 17, of 679 Riley Ave., police said.

JONES TOLD officers as he pulled into the alley he saw Lilly's car and swung to the left to avoid a collision, striking the railing.

The mishap damaged the right fender of the cab, but the Lilly auto was undamaged, police said.

A 19-year-old driver told police his 1961 model sedan was damaged in a hit-skip collision Sunday at 12:23 a.m. on Lisbon St.

James I. Wilson, 19, of 115 Beechwood Ave. told officers he was headed north when a southbound auto with one headlight struck the left rear of his auto and continued without stopping.

Wilson gave police a partial description of the other auto. He said he believes its left rear also was damaged.

A BACKING auto and a parked car were damaged in a collision Sunday at 11:41 a.m. on Washington St. about 40 feet south of E. 6th St., officers said.

The mishap involved a 1955 model car operated by John G. Freeman, 21, of 809 Northside Ave., and a parked 1961 model auto owned by Earl E. Kimes, 320 W. 4th St., officers said.

The mishap damaged the left tail light of the Freeman car and the right front fender of the Kimes vehicle.

Freeman told officers he was backing from a diagonal parking spot, but was watching a car parked too close to the side of his auto and did not see the Kimes vehicle, which was in a parallel parking spot across the street.

Patrolman Paul A. Burson Jr. investigated.

Political Buds

Things Are Bustin' Out All Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a little early even for the crocuses, but politics is bustin' out all over.

Consider these random week-end developments:

Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, disdained a demand of the Ohio AFL-CIO in the union's weekly "News and Views" that he be read out of the Democratic party. The AFL-CIO said he votes more with the Republicans than Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the House Republican leader, called on actor Ronald Reagan to stay in his California backyard if he seeks political office.

Speaking in Springfield, Ill., Ford said Reagan made a great impact in Michigan, Illinois and other states with campaign speeches for GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater. But, Ford told a news conference, "we Republicans don't believe in carpet-bagging like the Democrats do."

The evident object of Ford's gibe, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., added nothing new to his current political feud with New York State Democratic leaders who are allied with Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City.

One of these, state Sen. Joseph Zaretzki Saturday accused Kennedy of "trying to take over the legislature in New York."

'Founder's Day' Program Staged By School Group

"Founder's Day" was observed by the Hillcrest Fairview Parent-Teacher Association Thursday night, with the presentation of a skit, "Founder's Day Fantasy," directed by Miss Jane Morris, faculty member.

Participating were Mrs. Pearl Duck, John Duck, Wilmer Ralston, Mrs. Betty Cline, Mrs. Nellie Echols and Mrs. Kathy Riddle. Past presidents recognized were Mrs. Dorothy Hamilton (1952-53); Mrs. Eleanor Waite (1955-56); Mrs. Dorothy Kidney (1957-58); Richard Payne (1958-59); Mrs. Betty

But there was fresh speculation that Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., might seek the Republican nomination to oppose Wagner. As a Republican who carried New York City in his race for re-election in 1962, Javits would be considered a powerful opponent for the Democratic mayor.

In next door New Jersey, Sen. Clifford P. Case still was side-stepping a possible bid for the Republican nomination for governor. In Oregon, Democratic Sen. Maurine Neuberger, announced she will run again in 1966. Sen. Neuberger, who was married last year to a Boston psychiatrist, expressed surprise that anyone would doubt that she wants to remain in the Senate. Republican Gov. Mark O. Hatfield is expected to be her opponent.

In Salt Lake City, retiring GOP National Chairman Dean Burch blamed the news media, in part, for Goldwater's defeat last November. Burch said Goldwater ran on sound conservative principles but "we were never able to cut through a mass communications filter that turned an almost excessive candor on the part of our candidate into the appearance, at least, of radicalism and irresponsibility."

Thus the sprouting continued in the political seedbed.

Xenia Girl Captures

Honors At Hog Show

LONDON, Ohio (AP) — A 13-year-old Xenia girl swept most of the honors at the annual Ohio Spring Barrow Show and Sale here over the weekend.

Jeanne Collins, a junior exhibitor, showed the grand champion market hog, the reserve champion and the grand champion pen of three.

A total of 551 barrows was exhibited by 165 breeders from 33 counties. At the concluding auction sale, Routh Packing Co., of Sandusky, paid $1.10 a pound for Miss Collins' 210-pound champion, a Spot-Hamp cross-bred.

Her reserve champion also sold to Routh at 45 cents a pound and the grand champion of three went to Columbus Producers at 45 cents.

The reserve champion pen went to Landrace shown by Dr. R. D. Little, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, and sold at 23 cents a pound to the Union Stockyards at Washington Court House.

Dies Of Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gloria M. Vanderbilt, 60, mother of heiress Gloria Vanderbilt, died of cancer Saturday. Following the death of her husband, Reginald C. Mrs. Vanderbilt and other members of the family were involved in a much publicized custody battle for the daughter, who inherited $4 million from her grandfather, Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Physician Blames Tension

Congress' Doctor Uses Non-Partisan Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — To Dr. George W. Calver "there's no difference between a Republican bellyache and a Democratic bellyache."

He has been treating both for 36 years as Congress' "family doctor," a practice that is growing by leaps and bounds because, he says, Democrats and Republicans alike "either won't or don't relax enough."

Last year, Calver's Capitol Hill office handled about 45,000 cases of aches, pains and assorted ailments. This year he thinks the figure will be closer to 50,000.

As the attending physician to Congress, Calver is on the Hill at all times when Congress is in session. Besides senators and representatives, his patient load includes congressional officials and employees, reporters and tourists.

Now 77 and well past retirement age, Calver has no plan to quit. He is a picture of health.

"I follow my own advice," he said in an interview. "I exercise regularly, take a good walk every day, work in my garden and fool around in my workshop."

"I have no intention of becoming a victim of nervous tension."

Then he explained: "Nervous tension is the major occupational hazard of Congress. Senators and representatives are exposed to too much eating, too much talking, too much writing and too many pressures from their constituents.

"They either won't or don't relax enough. If they devote 5 per cent of their time to keeping well, they wouldn't have to spend 100 per cent of it getting over being sick."

Calver went to work for Congress in 1928. His post was created after three members collapsed in a single month. The Navy actually assigned Calver, then a lieutenant commander, to a three-year tour on the Hill. The idea was to rotate the assignment, but Congress liked him and passed a law preventing his reassignment. He is a rear admiral and is paid about $22,500 a year plus an additional $1,500 from Congress. Calver has two automobiles assigned to him, one by the Navy and one by Congress.

He has a staff of 12 nurses, two assistants and several medical corpsmen who handle most of the routine complaints. They are scattered at posts in most Capitol Hill buildings.

Calver handles most of the congressional complaints. Calver won't discuss individual cases. His professional motto is spelled out in a sign in his office: "No talkee, no tellee, no catchee hellee."

As Auto Runs Wild In Lot

YEADON, Pa. (AP) — The 9 a.m. Sunday Mass for children at the St. Louis Roman Catholic Church had just ended.

Anthony E. Munro and Paul Santoro, 8-year-old pupils at the parish's parochial school, were chatting with friends as they left the church.

Antoinette Mangione, 57, of Yeaddon, was among a group of adults entering for the next Mass at 10 a.m.

Peter McGinnity, 60, a real estate man, drove into the church parking lot. He let two elderly relatives out and reached over to close a door. The car shot out of control and rammed a group of parishioners against a church wall.

Anthony and Paul were dead by the time they reached Fitzgerald Mercy Hospital in nearby Darby. Mrs. Mangione died Sunday night of head, internal and leg injuries.

Four others, including McGinnity and two other boys, were injured.

Ignatius O'Brien, Yeaddon police captain, said that McGinnity apparently depressed the accelerator or moved the gear-shift lever when he reached over to shut the door.

McGinnity was treated at Mercy Fitzgerald Hospital in Darby for face and shoulder cuts and shock. He was held under $1,000 bail on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Russians Leave Note

For U.S. Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio State University glaciologist Dr. Richard L. Cameron was leading a group of scientists in an expedition across Antarctica when they stumbled onto a shelter and bust of Nikolai Lenin.

Russian members of a previous expedition had left a note welcoming the Americans, telling them where to find matches and cigarettes and reminding them to "please lock the door" when they left.

Cameron said the expedition sponsored by the National Science Foundation in Washington:

"Apart from our scientific interests, the most exciting event was our arrival at the Soviet station where we linked our traverse network with that of the U.S.S.R."

Some 10,700,000 square miles of North America lay under ice at one time or another.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell me why a compliment sticks in some people's throat?

I know Ben likes chopped herring the way his mother used to fix it. Believe me, it's a lot of trouble to bone and chop a herring but I do it because I want to please him. Why can't he show a little appreciation when I go out of my way to do something nice? What would it cost him?

Last night I said, "Ben, is the chopped herring good?" He answered, "I'm eating it, ain't I?"

I said, "Yes, Ben, I can see you're eating it, but is it good?" He answered, "If it isn't good then I'll tell you."

Ben is a wonderful husband and I wouldn't trade him for a million dollars. He has always been a good family man but this one fault of his has been eating on me for 30 years. What should I do? — LUCKY I DON'T HAVE ULCERS.

Dear Lucky: If the worst thing you can say about Ben is that he doesn't rave over your chopped herring, you are lucky.

Some women are married to men who can't translate their feelings into words. Pray for another 30 years with Ben.

Dislikes Advice

Dear Ann: I'm disgusted with the advice you gave the parents of a 20-year-old boy who got a 15-year-old girl in trouble. You said their son should return to college and the girl should go to a home to have her baby.

Why shouldn't the boy be made to pay for his mistake? Decent parents would not have found it necessary to write to you. They would have insisted that their son marry the girl.

Every child deserves to be raised by his natural mother and father and you should be ashamed of yourself for suggesting otherwise. — DISGUSTED WITH YOU.

Dear Disgusted With Me: Every child deserves to be loved. Often adoptive parents can give far greater love than the child's natural parents — simply because they want the child and the natural parents did not.

A collared father and a trapped mother cannot help but harbor feelings of resentment. The bitterness often is directed against the child. These innocent victims — unloved and unwanted — grow up to be emotional cripples.

You'll never catch me advising parents to push children into marriage. It can be grossly unfair to the boy, the girl and, most of all, it can be unfair to the child.

Proof Positive

Dear Ann: I'm an honor stu-

How Many Pounds Between Half-Sizes?

Half - sizes are proportioned wider through the waist and abdomen. They are designed for the short-waisted, mature figure. The half-size fits a great many middle aged and older women and therefore saves alteration charges on clothes.

The number of pounds between half-sizes is about the same as in the other size category: 12 to 14 pounds in the small range, and a 16 pound difference in the larger range.

A reader who presently wears the half-size wants to change her size category:

"I am short, 5' 1 1/4"; weight 145 pounds — 25 pounds overweight. I wear size 16 1/2. I would like to make my first goal size 16 short or petite, and then aim for a size 14 petite. I am in my 40s. How many pounds and inches will I have to lose?"

CHEERS! You are wise to aim at healthy, normal weight for your structure and to move toward your goal in steps.

Since you are short and short-waisted, your proper size category at normal weight will be in the petite or short dress sizes. To wear size 16-short, you will need to reduce seven pounds and whittle the middle measurements, the waist and abdomen.

In the Scientific Sizing System, on the short figure the waist for size 16 1/2 measures 31 1/2 inches and the abdomen 38 1/2 inches. These are body measurements.

To wear size 16-short your waist measurement should be 29 inches and the abdomen 36 1/2 inches. Hips in both size categories measure the same, 40 inches regular and 38 inches slender. Weight for size 16 1/2 is approximately 144 pounds; for size 16-short it is approximately 138 pounds. For size 14-short the waist measurement is 17 inches.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruce —

Dear Heloise: My cotton cafe roll. Use a fresh sheet over curtains above the kitchen sink in our little abode caused me such grief until I discovered a way to make them semi-splash-proof!

I wash, starch and iron them as usual . . . then with a hot iron I press them with waxed paper on the right side before putting them back up at the window! This makes them almost waterproof and they stay fresh at least twice as long.

This waxed paper is the ordinary kind you buy by the roll.

Use a fresh sheet over each new area.

A READER.

It works! Many people have also written that they iron leaky raincoats with waxed paper too! I tried that on a beige raincoat and it was "hotsy-totsy."

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Being a working girl who also has to maintain a home, I think your column is priceless.

This is a simple hint, but one I have enjoyed a lot.

Whenever I get a stack of ironing (and who doesn't?), I put everything to be ironed in a large hamper with a lid. In this, I put a couple of unwrapped bars of my favorite soap.

When I get the time to iron, everything comes out fresh and clean-smelling.

L.H.

Now, who in this wide, wide world would ever think of putting a bar of scented soap in with their ironing? We have often had complaints from mothers who have let ironing stack up that it has an odor. Wow! This is a hot idea.

Remember too, that the soap is getting hard, and the harder a bar of soap gets, the longer it lasts when you begin to use it.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: The following method is a good way to clean small-neck bud vases that have stubborn stains:

Fill the container one-fourth full of low-sudsing detergent solution, put in a well-crushed egg shell and shake vigorously. The shell should be crushed finely enough to be poured out easily.

ELMER EGASHIRA.

DEAR HELOISE: When my raisins become dry and hard I put them in a bowl and pour boiling water over them and let them set a while. They soon become firm and plump again. Just pour off the water and let them drain. Quite edible.

KEY KELLY.

DEAR HELOISE: Here is a hint for those who sew a lot: Take a large permanent wave curler with teeth or slits in it. Start winding your bias tape, etc., on the curler, roll it up and snap it. This keeps sewing tape smooth and like new, and easy to find in your sewing box.

Bringing Up A Family

By DR. GARRY MYERS

Early Reading Start Helps Child

What do you think might happen if practically all children were read to once or several times a day from the age of two or younger till long past the time they entered school? Think of the years of their good education before they entered the first grade. Consider the hundreds of quiet hours of happiness for these youngsters.

In the modern world of growing excitement and tensions in the home, ponder on the thought of the many hours of quiet pleasure they would enjoy.

Hearing over and over again the same story, the little child gains vocabulary and patterns of speech. He has more to think about and talk about. His imagination is fired. He creates pictures and sounds in his head.

He connects in his heart and mind the story he hears with the book and gains a feeling of tenderness toward this book. He keeps wishing for the time when he can read from a book alone; and when he begins to read, he hardly will try just to pronounce words but he will try to get the meaning from them.

SO CENTERED on the story he listens to enjoyably, he is practiced in good habits of concentration. He is getting ready to listen rapidly when at school the teacher gives directions or explains things to all his class, or when a classmate reads aloud or gives his idea about what he has heard or read.

In almost any home there is someone to read to the baby and young child—parent, grandparent, guest, baby sitter or older child. When an older child reads to a younger one, there grows up a kindly feeling between the two. The same may hold true when a parent or baby sitter reads. What delightful companionship Dad may have with the little child while reading to him.

See how the older reading child may thus improve his reading skill. Indeed, such reading may be the best possible way for a poor reader to become a good reader. Even in homes where a parent does not read English with ease it could prove a boon. What is more, any person—child or adult—who often reads aloud to a younger child gains thereby in ease and forcefulness of expression.

I PROBABLY would not be writing this column and editing a children's magazine, had I not spent years reading aloud to my own children when they were very young. Before I had done that I had great difficulty in writing in simple language. I wrote like many dull professors write.

Books from which to read to the baby and young child are relatively inexpensive; so are the several good children's magazines. Besides, many wonderful books for reading to children may be borrowed from a library. Perhaps 90 per cent of all homes in America could easily provide good sources from which to read to the baby and young child.

Yet there are homes, alas, in deprived areas, in which parents may neither have the means for providing such books, or the desire to read to their little children at home. Consider how meager in culture their little children may be on entering school.

But here and there one sees hope for these children, where the public school authorities are providing nursery schools in culturally deprived areas to admit children four years old or younger. To these nursery schools some parents come and grow interested in what they may do for their children at home.

MOST hopeful is the growing practice in a few places of inducing mothers to come to this nursery school to participate, especially to read to small groups of little children there.

The kindergarten and primary grades also afford great opportunities to have mothers volunteer to read to small groups of children. In a single classroom half a dozen such groups may be listening and learning eagerly and enjoyably.

I like to dream of the day when, all over our nation, parents and older children will be reading aloud to youngsters for several years before they enter the first grade.

My bulletin, "Why Read to Baby and Young Child," may be secured by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Safest states in the U. S., so far as tornadoes are concerned, are Nevada, Rhode Island and Alaska—the official Weather Bureau records listing only one tornado in each of these states during the past 43 years.

Sea Duty Begun By 'Ricketts' With Crew From Six Nations

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Manned by 255 seamen from six nations, the guided missile destroyer Claude V. Ricketts goes out today on her first regular deployment with the U.S. Navy since she became America's prototype of a multilateral force.

The Ricketts sails with two other ships for five to six months' duty with the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean. Her mixed crew has been in training for the "show-me" assignment for eight months.

Aboard are 150 crewmen from the United States, 36 from West Germany, 24 from Italy, 23 from Great Britain, 20 from Greece, 2 from the Netherlands. All speak English—or try to.

The multilateral force—MLF—has been America's proposal for a way to share control of nuclear weapons with other nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The late President John F. Kennedy had proposed a fleet of MLF surface ships carrying Polaris missiles.

The idea hit heavy opposition at the start and has been losing more ground lately.

Turkey withdrew her 11-man contingent Saturday. President Johnson recently has softened American insistence on the proposal.

France is against the idea. Britain wants modification of it and West Germany seems to be losing her enthusiasm for it.

The Ricketts has been doing fine in training. Despite the difficulties some crewmen have with English and some grumbling about the lack of liquor aboard, she got a top rating after a four-week shakedown cruise in the Caribbean last month.

Any crewmen caught speaking a language other than English gets what Lt. Cmdr. F. J. Reed, the ship's executive officer, calls a "swift, delicate reprimand." Classes in English are continuing.

PO I.C. Aick D. Scott and his fellow Brits miss the daily tot of rum their country provides its sailors.

Nor has the teetotaling policy of the American Navy pleased the Germans, used to their beer, and the Italians, their wine.

The Ricketts took on her first foreign seamen last June. Her sisters ships on the cruise are the guided missile frigate Dewey and the guided-missile destroyer Barney.

Sport Needs Add Twist To Designing Technique

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Americans are an outdoor people, but their enthusiasm to live up to the hill is often dampened by the stress on elegance in their homes.

It would be great if everyone had some sort of outbuilding for recreation enthusiasts — a place you could tramp into and relax with fellow fishermen, skaters or swimmers without worrying about scars on floors or furniture.

A whole new breed of interior designers and architects may be needed to further the scheme, some who wouldn't worry about smags that have existed heretofore.

Community recreation housing, additions such as saunas, even in apartment buildings, portable summer rooms at pools — all growing ideas in recent years, show what can be devised in low-cost outbuildings.

Another step can be the many contests open to students to show what they could do with space and mass if they had the chance.

A student Design Competition in Interior Design and Decoration, a 26th annual for the American Institute of Interior Designers, offered a program of remodeling an existing outbuilding, a Vermont ski barn, incorporating seating facilities for 60 persons into the old structure.

It brought entries from some 200 students from 23 schools and colleges in 15 states, an unusual number considering the regional nature of the project, says the institute.

"Anything that would open up new possibilities for recreation and for design, sort of a separation of activities from the house, is a great idea," says Marlys Hann, second prize winner. "A lot is being done in a small way even with the average house with outdoor terraces, decks and so on to further the extension idea, but much more could be done."

A graduate of the University of Oregon, her home is in Salem. She is a beginner student at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn where she hopes to get a Masters Degree, and start working in the design field. She's mainly interested in structure and architectural forms, she says.

She particularly showed her creativity by utilizing the barn silo. "I thought instead of removing it, why not use it as an entrance, so that one could take advantage of the tall cylindrical structural effects. So I suggested building circular benches that would be a good place to enter and remove boots and so on."

A balcony is a great space saver in any room where you have enough height to accommodate a mezzanine, says Marlys. She outfitted the barn balcony with tables, comfortable chairs and a fireplace, so that skiers could remove sports shoes and outer wear and sit at the balcony with an open fire.

Marlys 22, has skied in Oregon, at Aspen and at Sun Valley. A newcomer to the East, she has never skied in Vermont although she hopes to now that she has been successful in remodeling a Vermont barn.

COLONIAL EXTERIOR is combined with modern interior design in this ranch house, wide and low on the lot. A sheltered loggia forms the entry; hall access to all rooms leaves living and dining rooms free of unnecessary use. Family room and kitchen have ready access from front, back and side entries. Living area is 1,260 square feet. Homes for Americans Plan HA379V was designed by Fenick A. Vogel, Room 704, 48 W. 48th St., New York, N. Y. 10036.

'Be Different' Is Theme For Home Furnishings

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Creative genius is popping out all over the home. The rule of the thumb is the same as in dress fashions and grooming—be different.

The architect gave you rooms like boxes? You don't have to live that way.

Home furnishings manufacturers say you should buckle up your draperies or put an armchair in your bedroom? Not if you don't want to.

Time was when being different worried those who had to be — because they couldn't afford to follow the crowd.

But now you can put pop fashions in the home and hang your bed from the ceiling, and people will admire your creativity. You can have a great home furnished on a shoestring if you have good taste and imagination.

ONE INDICATION of how things have changed is evident in store home fashion promotions.

In a cosmopolitan city, for example, we see one store promoting a French country style, another going all-out for Mexican, another sticking with the old-time chintz look, big flowers, though deeper colors, and another store using oak lavishly in Tudor, Renaissance and Regency furniture adaptations in 15 of their model rooms.

Box-like rooms are being jazzed up in virtually every home with family-wide participation in planning, buying, installing the functional additions necessary for that particular family — alcoves, bookcase, built-in furniture or a second level.

Many families develop ideas to the point where they can give intelligently sketched plans to architects, interior designers or materials manufacturers who provide design services.

Character rooms are becoming popular, for example. These can be anything from a rugged Teddy Roosevelt room to a Three B's room for the musically inclined — Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

Funneling ideas into a single field simplifies it. Some people like regional ideas — Western Ranch, Southern Plantation, Hawaiian and so on.

If an artistic student decides to have a Michaelangelo room, for example, where a travertine marble wall would be fitting, panels of Masonite could be substituted.

Available at lumber dealers, it can provide a similar appearance at quick-to-install budget prices. There are directions available, too. These and other hardboards provide wide latitude when planning structural changes.

THE REMODELING of one wall can do wonders in setting a new mood for an old tired room. A new background will make your room look refreshed and give it a touch of individuality if it is creatively planned. The success of a small project may impel one to a larger project — adding a room or enlarging one. A room may be wanted for billiards or hand-weaving on a loom or one that all the family can share for play and hobby. One should not become stymied by an idea just because he hasn't seen it done before. It just becomes more intriguing.

When considering a major project, an architect or one experienced in remodeling should be consulted.

The counsel of a designer qualified in the utilization of materials may be helpful, and even essential to cut costs. Costs of this service can range from nothing to a small amount. Consultation often can be bought by the day or project if one inquires at local lumber dealers.

Once a project has jelled and specifications for structural materials are listed, the family will be ready to take bids for the work.

Oil Storage Tank Problem Studied

Question: Many years ago, in an old house we owned, the oil storage tank in our basement was damaged by rust and had to be replaced even though we had painted it regularly.

We were told that the rusting was caused by condensation on the inside of the tank.

We will be moving into a new house soon. It also has an oil tank in the basement. How can we prevent the same trouble happening again?

Answer: It is difficult to prevent condensation forming on the inside of a metal tank, dropping into the oil and then settling at the bottom, especially during the warm weather when the oil isn't being used.

That's why it's a good idea to keep the tank filled during the summer months. But you probably can avoid future trouble by having your oil dealer add a rust inhibitor to the fuel or adding it yourself. You can buy it in liquid or other forms.

Question: We live in an area where there are high winds at certain times of the year. What kind of roofing shingles should we get (we're having the roof re-shingled) to prevent having them blow off?

Answer: Tell your roofer you want the shingles with an adhesive that cements the tabs to the roof deck. They're a little more expensive than the standard type, but worth the money.

Home Haircuts

ATLANTA (AP) — The buyer for the notions section of a big department store says the sale of hair clippers has risen 500 per cent in the past two years. The reason: higher barber shop prices. The buyer reported one store executive's wife cuts the hair of her four boys and sometimes takes a whack at her husband.

'Dropped Ceiling' Hints Are Offered

Question: Getting ready to finish a basement. There are some pipes running just below the beams and I'd like to put in a dropped ceiling of some kind. Is there any easier way than putting up furring strips, cross length and so on? I hope to get a first-class result.

Answer: Yes there's an easier and better way to put up a dropped ceiling, but it will cost more money.

A suspended ceiling of this type consists of a grid or framework which is hung from wires or metal straps fastened to the overhead beams. Panels measuring either 2 by 2 or 2 by 4 are then placed inside this framework. You can get the panels either in acoustical material similar to that used in tiles or in translucent plastic panels with fluorescent fixtures directly above them.

Find a building supply dealer who carries this kind of dropped ceiling, sometimes called Box beam, and bring him the measurements of the space you plan to cover. He will give you the proper amount of material for the job.

Question: We have a silk lamp shade which has darkened generally, although there are no specific stains on it. How can we clean it?

Answer: Using a clean feather duster or clean cloth, remove all dust from the shade. Place it in a large container or tub of lukewarm suds and lift it up and down 20 or 30 times.

Rinse with clear lukewarm water. Blot with a terry towel or similar cloth. Stand it about two feet from an electric fan and let it stay there for about a day. Do not attempt to dry it in the sunlight or near heat.

Before beginning the dunking procedure in the lukewarm suds, be sure any trimming on the shade is securely attached.

Prince Henry, Portuguese nobleman of the 15th century, was noted for his encouragement of science and geographical discovery.

Dogs Growl At Birds, Car Smacks Into Pole

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The amiable spirit of St. Valentine's Day went astray Sunday for Arthur Oliver, two dogs, two pet birds and a bent telephone pole.

Oliver, 57, was headed home in his car. His dogs were sitting in the back seat. His newly purchased finches were in a box next to him. The pooches bared their fangs at the birds.

Amid much barking and alarmed tweeting, and Oliver trying to calm things down, the car smacked into the pole. Police said Oliver was only shaken, also the dogs and the birds.

There are about 50 species of garfish, sometimes called needlefish or billfish. Found in warm waters, they are fast swimmers and some are six feet long.

You Shouldn't Be Satisfied With Just Any Old 'Roller'

AP Newsfeatures

A paint roller is a paint roller is a paint roller.

Wrong, wrong, wrong.

This may surprise lots of persons who walk into hardware and paint stores and select rollers on the basis of what happens to catch their fancy. Use the right roller for a particular job and you'll get a better result.

Even more, the paint will roll on easier and faster, cutting the time necessary to finish the project.

The general rule is that the smoother the surface, the shorter the nap of the roller—or in reverse, the rougher the surface, the longer the nap.

In Municipal Court Cases

Driver Fined And Jailed; Another's License Lifted

A Wellsville man was jailed and fined and a Chester motorist lost his driver's license for six months in traffic hearings this morning before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

James Franklin, 40, of 1801 Nevada St. was sentenced to 10 days in the County Jail for driving without an operator's permit and was fined $25 on a reckless driving charge. He also was ordered to pay the $7.50 costs on each charge.

The Wellsville man was cited by police Friday night after the auto he was driving struck two parked cars on Elizabeth St.

Queried by Judge Chertoff on why he was driving when he knew he didn't have a permit and had been drinking, Franklin replied: "I thought I was in better condition than he was," apparently referring to a companion. The auto was owned by Robert Warren of Toronto, police said.

Thomas R. Pinkerton, 119 Indiana Ave., Chester, drew the six-month suspension of his license after pleading guilty to speeding 70 miles an hour in 50-mile zone early Saturday on Route 7.

When Pinkerton appeared, Judge Chertoff recalled that he had forfeited a $200 bond last March for speeding.

"I'll tell you why you didn't appear; you were charged with going 110 miles an hour and you would rather lose the money than face Judge Chertoff," he said.

"You shouldn't be driving, you have a heavy foot," the judge continued. When Pinkerton said he was not going to drive again, the judge answered quickly, "I'm going to help you," and handed down the suspension.

Emerson Braden Wimer of R. D. 1 was fined $15 and costs after pleading guilty to driving 60 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone on W. 8th St. Saturday night.

Oliver W. Watson, 340 Baum St., forfeited $27.50 bond on a parking violation.

Watson was accused in an affidavit filed by "Meter Maid" Leah Kelly, of failing to pay a ticket issued April 17 on Jackson St. Five other unpaid tickets were attached to the affidavit.

Donnie Dale Ankrom of Akron Nazarene. Burial will be in Glenview Cemetery.

Friends may call tonight at the funeral home.

Dean Watson

NEW CUMBERLAND — Dean Watson, 80, of nearby Moscow, a retired farmer, died Saturday at 11:30 a. m. at his home after an illness of several years.

Mr. Watson was born in Hancock County, Dec. 15, 1884, to the late William A. Watson and Laura Brown Watson. He married Mary Hutson on Jan. 14, 1915, and the couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in January.

Besides his widow, he leaves five sons, Walter Watson, at home, William A. Watson of Chester and Leonard Watson, Dale Watson and Oliver Watson, all of New Cumberland; two daughters, Mrs. Virginia Finch of Miami and Mrs. Charles (Alice) Mitchell of New Cumberland; a sister, Miss Clara M. Watson of New Cumberland and 13 grandchildren.

Services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Fields Funeral Home on Ridge Ave. by the Rev. Harry Light of the Nessly Chapel. Burial will be in Union Cemetery in Pughtown.

Friends may call any time at the funeral home.

'A Real Shock'

So Says 'First Wife' In Case

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—It has been more than a week since Mrs. Mary Lou Bader felt the shock of learning that her husband, declared dead several years ago, has been living another life under another name in Omaha.

"I haven't been able to think clearly since then," the attractive, blonde mother of four said in the only interview she has granted since hearing the news.

"It was a shock to me . . . it was something unreal, sort of like a numbness," said Mrs. Bader.

The copyrighted interview, published Sunday by the Akron Beacon Journal, quoted Mrs. Bader as saying she had never doubted that her husband was dead and knew of no reason why he would voluntarily disappear.

"I had to accept the fact that he was dead . . . that was the only conclusion that I ever came to."

Her first reaction on learning that John F. (Fritz) Johnson, an Omaha sportscaster, was the missing Larry Bader: "I was very stunned and frightened at first, then decided it couldn't be true."

It was the fingerprints that convinced her that Johnson and Bader were the same man.

Bader disappeared and was presumed drowned in a boating accident on Lake Erie May 15, 1957. Mrs. Bader, now 38, collected $40,000 in insurance.

Four days after the accident, Bader or Johnson turned up in Omaha and started a new life. He insists he has no recollection of life as Larry Bader. He is in a hospital now undergoing tests.

Mrs. Bader declined to give an opinion on her husband's claim of amnesia.

"I think we will have to wait until he's examined thoroughly," she said. "I don't really understand the whole thing."

Mrs. Bader said she is not "shutting the door to a possible reconciliation," but she is prepared to proceed with legal action against Bader if necessary to protect her children. The children are her "primary concern" in this matter, she declared.

Niles Stuns Potters With 78-73 Upset In 3 Overtimes

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

The basketball road became quite bumpy over the weekend for the East Liverpool Potters, who completed a disastrous road trip by being upset at Niles in a triple overtime, 78-73 Saturday night.

The Potters entered the weekend with a respectable 10-5 record, but now show a 10-7 mark, with one game remaining—Friday at Weirton.

THE TWO defeats also may keep the Blue and White from being one of two seeded teams in the Sectional Class AA tournament.

The surprise at Niles, coupled with the loss at Martins Ferry Friday night, marked the second time this season East Liverpool has dropped two games in succession.

The Potters opened the campaign with three straight defeats, but hadn't lost two in a row since until this past weekend. Niles entered the game with a poor 3-11 mark and hadn't beaten any one in four Big 8 Conference starts until the Potters came along.

East Liverpool and Niles battled to a 63-63 tie at the end of regulation time. The triple overtime marked the first time an East Liverpool team had been involved in so many extra periods.

THE FIRST overtime session ended 67-67 and the second 73-73. Niles finally ended the mar-ation in the third extra period by scoring five points, while the Potters failed to tally.

If Niles hadn't pulled a boner near the end of regulation time, the contest never would have gone into overtime and Niles could have been the winner without playing the extra nine minutes.

NILES was leading, 63-62 with 16 seconds remaining after Bob Maltarich had scored a goal to put the Potters within one. Niles had possession of the ball out of bounds following the goal.

The Red Dragons didn't have any times out remaining, but a Niles player called for one any way. This meant a technical foul and the ball was given to the Potters out of bounds.

Maltarich shot the important technical foul and was the hero for the moment when he tied the score at 63-63.

Joe Massey had a final shot in the closing seconds, but missed, and the contest spilled into overtime.

After Frank Taylor gave East Liverpool the lead in the first overtime, Niles went in front with 18 seconds remaining, 67-65, but the Potters were given new life when Ben Springer put up a rebound with eight seconds to go which tied the game again, 67-67.

The second overtime saw both teams exchange three goals as Taylor, Vern Smith and Massey scored for the Potters to send the game into the third extra period deadlocked at 73-73. The Blue and White would have had a chance for the last shot in the session after gaining possession with a minute to go, but lost the ball out of bounds.

In the final overtime, the Potters missed two straight shots and George Infante put Niles in front for good 75-73. Dick Corea added a foul and Frank Petrela dropped in another bucket to ice the contest at 78-73.

COACH Frank Chan expressed disappointment over the upset as he watched his team commit too many errors, namely poor passing and lack of hustle after loose balls.

It was probably the Potters worse effort since early in the season when they were on a three-game losing streak.

East Liverpool's biggest lead of the night was six points in the second quarter. The Potters led at halftime, 38-35, but Niles came storming back in the third quarter for nine straight points in the closing moments to race in front, 51-47, as the period ended.

BOUNCING back, East Liverpool scored seven consecutive points to pull from a 56-48 deficit to within one point, 56-55.

With three minutes remaining in the game, Maltarich scored two goals in nine seconds, one coming on a steal, to put the Potters back into the lead, at 59-58. East Liverpool never led after that until Maltarich tied the score at 63-63 to send the contest into overtime.

Knights Drops 1st League Tilt On Beaver Floor; Pape's Team 11-6

Beaver Local stood one game away from equalling the school's best record in basketball after pulling one of the big upsets in the Buckeye Border Conference this season turning back Toronto, 50-44 Saturday night on the Beaver's court.

The victory has to go down as the sweetest of the season for Coach John Pape's Beavers who stand in with an 11-6 record. A victory over Jefferson Union Friday night at Beaver Local in the final game of the season would equal the Beavers' only other winning season of 1960-61 when they recorded a 12-6 mark.

By upsetting Toronto, Beaver Local became the first team in the Buckeye Border Conference to defeat the Red Knights who lead the league. The loss leaves Toronto with an 11-4 mark.

BEAVER Local now has won its last five games and Saturday night came from behind to keep the win streak alive.

The tight contest saw Beaver Local in front, 12-10 at the first quarter pole and 23-22 at halftime. Toronto went into the lead 34-32 after three frames but Beaver Local came back in the fourth quarter, took a 42-36 lead at the halfway mark and protected the margin.

LARRY ROBERTS, the promising junior, wound up with 10 points but scored eight of those in the final period.

Wildcats Win 'Rubber Match'

Westgate Rolls By East, 47-32, For Junior High Tourney Crown

Westgate encountered little trouble in scoring a convincing 47-32 victory over arch rival East Junior High to win the 1965 version of the Junior High Tournament championship Saturday afternoon at Memorial Auditorium.

SOME 1,200 fans turned out to see the "rubber match" between the two city junior high powers. However, it didn't turn out to be the match that the last one was. Two weeks ago the two teams battled into a double overtime before East won out.

Saturday was different, Westgate led all the way gaining a 13-6 first quarter lead. The Wildcats were on top 20-14 then pulled out to a 36-26 advantage after three periods.

THE TWO teams entered the game with 16-1 records suffering defeats only to each other.

Westgate, in coming to the top of its class from a field of eight teams which entered the tournament, was led by Bob McKinnon who tallied 13 points but the other four starters were balanced well.

Earl Diddle, Mike McVay and Rex Campbell added eight points each while Dale Jones tallied nine markers from his pivot spot.

MITCHELL Jones scored almost half of his team points netting 15 on five field goals while making five of 15 foul attempts.

In the consolation game, Steubenville Big Red, which was eliminated by Westgate, scored a 59-41 victory over Beaver Local.

The Beavers battled gamely for the first half, trailing 23-17 at intermission but fell behind 39-25 after three periods.

Sistrick and Burke with 15 each paced the Big Red five while Dennis Klembara of Beaver Local took scoring honors with 26. Klembara, winner of the foul shooting trophy, made 16 of 22 in the consolation tilt.

Named to the 10-member all-tourney team were Earl Diddle, Mike McVay, Rex Campbell and Bob McKinnon of Westgate, Bruce Chrisitan and Mitchell Jones of East Junior, Jim Smith and Clarence Burke of Steubenville and Dennis Klembara and Dave Harger of Beaver Local.

Klembara won the foul shooting trophy with 27 of 36 for 75 per cent.

Clippers Claim 13th, Wallop Lisbon, 79-49

COLUMBIANA — Racing to a 28-10 first quarter lead, Columbian had little trouble notching its 13th win in 16 games with a 79-49 verdict over Lisbon here Saturday night.

The Clippers settled the Tri-County battle early and held a 40-27 margin at halftime and 60-35 after three periods.

Rick Istnick pushed in 18 points and Al Wise added 16 for the Clippers.

Pappas topped the Lisbon scoring with 14 markers for one of his top efforts of the season.

The Columbian reserves won the preliminary battle.

Oak Glen Upsets Morgantown Five, 65-64

Carnes, Thayer, Wagner Lead 2nd-Half Rally In 8th Victory

Oak Glen turned in its most stunning upset of the season by coming from 13 points behind to nip Morgantown High, 65-64 Saturday night on the Oak Glen court.

The Morgantown five had defeated Oak Glen earlier in the season and was ranked among the top 20 teams in the state. The latest victory leaves Oak Glen batting .500 with an 8-8 mark while Morgantown dropped its sixth game while showing 11 victories.

Dennis Carnes, who emerged at the high point man for Oak Glen and was the leader of a second half rally, made a game saving play in the final seconds of the contest.

With Morgantown's Bob Tonon driving for a basket that would have won the game if he made it, Carnes made a key play by blocking the shot.

Thayer wound up with 13 points for the night but 12 of those came in the fourth quarter. Thayer was in foul trouble in the first period with three and Coach Bob Starkey set his leading scorer on the bench through the second period.

CARNES, who paced the Bears with 24, scored 12 in the first half and another important dozen in the second half. Wagner made nine of his 14 points in the second half.

Ken Stevens led Morgantown with 25 points while Ed Hriban, a 5-11 guard who was averaging 30 points per game, was held under his average as he scored 21. Hriban is one of the most sought after cagers in West Virginia.

UCLA Almost Clinches Spot

Field Forming For NCAA Cage Tourney Next Month

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer
UCLA's defending national collegiate basketball champions, unbeaten in their conference, appear to be one of the best bets to make the NCAA tournament that will decide the 1965 titlist next month.

The Bruins won two Pacific Athletic Conference games last week, pushing their record to 8-0 and 18-2 over-all and all but nailing down a spot in the 25-team field that must struggle through first-round activity, then four regional tournaments before reaching the final round of four in Portland, Ore., in March.

With three weeks of the regular season remaining, these teams appear today to have the best chances of taking their conference titles and gaining a spot in the tourney.

Michigan, Big Ten; Tennessee, Southeastern; Oklahoma

State, Big Eight; Wichita, Missouri Valley San Francisco, West Coast; Texas Tech, Southwest; Cornell, Ivy; St. Joseph's, Pa., Mid-Atlantic; Davidson, Southern; Duke, Atlantic Coast; Connecticut, Yankee; New Mexico, WAC; Eastern Kentucky, Ohio Valley; and Miami of Ohio, Mid American.

Some of the teams which fail to make the NCAA will be invited to the National Invitational Tournament in New York.

Michigan, Tennessee, Oklahoma State, Davidson, Duke and Cornell still face stern tasks before getting NCAA tournament berths.

Michigan, the No. 1 team in The Associated Press poll, must down Minnesota and Illinois before nailing down the Big Ten title. Tennessee may have a playoff with Vanderbilt for the SEC crown. Oklahoma State has to shake off Kansas. Cornell must beat Princeton again to sew up the Ivy. Davidson and Duke, despite records of 21-1 and 16-2 must win championship tournaments in the Southern and AAC.

Tennessee's 79-66 victory over seventh-ranked Vanderbilt and Minnesota's 105-90 rout of 10th-ranked Illinois were among the highlights of Saturday's action. Unbeaten Providence made it 18 straight by downing Duquesne 83-75. Davidson won its 20th in a row by whipping Richmond 83-73. Cornell won its 12th straight with a 90-60 romp over Brown.

Michigan had to come from behind to beat Michigan State 98-83 paced by Cazzie Russell's 32 points and second-ranked UCLA rallied to defeat Washington State 70-68. Third-ranked St. Joseph's jumped its record to 21-1 by clouting Temple 73-59.

STEVE CANYON

GASOLINE ALLEY

OFF THE RECORD

"Ignore the Smith boy—no arm, and the Riley kid—poor control, but watch out for Billy Wilson—lots of stuff."

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—How can I silence squeaky shoes?

A.—Try piercing several small holes through the sole, just in back of the ball of the foot.

Q.—How can I prevent the formation of "skin" over my laundry starch solution?

A.—After you've prepared your starch, cover the bowl with a piece of cloth stretched tight.

Q.—How can I clean the blackened andirons in my fireplace?

A.—Remove these black deposits with white gasoline (used outdoors, of course). Follow with a kitchen cleanser, and complete the cleaning chore with metal polish. Clean any pitted areas with a vinegar-salt solution, then rinse quickly.

Q.—How can I keep paint brushes soft?

A.—After using paint or varnish, and cleaning the brushes thoroughly, rub the bristles with petroleum jelly and put away free from dust. This will keep your brushes soft, pliable, and usable.

Q.—How can I improve a padding under my rugs if I don't have the real thing?

A.—Make a padding with several layers of newspapers. A good feature of this kind of padding is that moths detest the smell of printer's ink!

Q.—How can I make "mock eggplant"?

A.—Try dipping cucumber slices in beaten egg, then in fine bread crumbs, then fry them. They taste like eggplant, and add variety to any meal.

Junior Editors Quiz on YOUR BRAIN

QUESTION: How does the brain work?

ANSWER: Your brain — much more intricate than any machine ever built — directs the activity of your body. Your eyes, ears and nose send it information about what's going on outside, your brain gathers it together, compares it with past experiences and decides what's to be done. Then your brain sends out commands to various parts of the body so your decisions can be carried out. Study the picture and you'll find the parts of the brain to which information from Harry's senses are being sent. Covering the upper, main part of the brain, or cerebrum, is an almost magic layer of grey cells called the cortex, comparing them with memories of past events. The part of this layer toward the front has to do with consciousness and thought. Here Harry can realize that what he sees and smells are cookies, and from here he can send commands to the motor part of the brain which controls the movements of all parts of the body. He sends out a command to his hand to reach out for a cookie and to his speech organs to thank his mother for making them.

FOR YOU TO DO: Locate the medulla and cerebellum in the picture, for these are also important parts of the brain. They also get reports and send out commands, controlling balance, heartbeats and many other things. But these parts of the brain work automatically; the conscious mind need not bother about them at all.
